

3 Hijacked Planes Blown Up

AMMAN (UPI)—Arab guerrillas today blew up three hijacked passenger planes on the Jordanian desert after removing all of the passengers and crewmen they had threatened to kill.

Most of the women and children among the 414 persons hijacked earlier in the week were taken to Amman, but male passengers were removed from the planes—worth a total of $20 million—and taken to a secret hideaway.

The planes destroyed were a TWA Boeing 707 valued at $8 million, a Swissair DC8 valued at $5 million and a BOAC VC10 valued at $7 million. On Monday they destroyed a $24.5 million Pan American jumbo jet at the Cairo airport.

At one point the hijackers announced they would blow up the planes and all 414 persons aboard if West Germany, Switzerland and Britain did not release seven Arab commandos by 10 p.m. EDT Wednesday. They changed the deadline to 10 p.m. EDT today and began taking many of the passengers to Amman.

Friday the Palestinian guerrillas placed dynamite charges aboard the planes, herded the passengers back aboard and said they would destroy them all—possibly 256 persons. Then they relented under pressure of world opinion, including the Arab nations and more moderate guerrillas.

Today, 60 men held aboard the plane barely escaped with their lives. Guerrilla sources said they were taken off at the last moment in a change of heart.

Earlier today a female guerrilla singing Palestinian revolutionary songs through a loud speaker led a group of 103 refugees into Amman from the desert in a fleet of eight camouflaged Jordanian army trucks.

The guerrillas still were holding nearly 200 persons, mostly men, somewhere on the desert. Another 128 passengers have left Jordan for Europe by other planes. About 124 passengers were in the Trans-Continental Hotel in Amman.

A spokesman for the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which staged the hijackings Labor Day weekend, said the rest of the hostages would be brought to Amman tonight but would be held at a separate and secret place.

In addition to demanding the release of seven guerrillas held in Western Europe on criminal charges the guerrillas also were demanding the release of an unspecified number of Arab guerrillas held in jails in Israel, many of them on criminal charges.

It was not clear if the guerrillas were holding Israeli citizens separately. The United States and other western nations have demanded all prisoners be released as a package deal, but the guerrillas have balked at this.

Most of the passengers brought into Amman today in the eight-bus convoy were British, American, German and Norwegian. The female guerrilla who led the convoy in a jeep shouted nationalistic songs including one that sounded like very tired and tense and were able before they were taken to government representatives, driven by Jordanian army soldiers. However the guerrillas appeared to be in control of the situation with the Jordanian an Arab versions of White covered with a thick film of desert dust. A desert sand storm had made life aboard the Amman they were engulfed by heavily armed guerrillas, rode in some of the buses, hundreds of airline officials, three planes even more unbearable.

As the passengers arrived in Cross officials.

Gun-Carrying Guards on U.S. Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An unknown number of the nearly 15,000 commercial airplane flights over and out of the United States today had an extra passenger—a gun-carrying guard, stationed in the cabin on President Nixon's orders.

But it was doubtful the average airline traveler would know if his flight carried the jet age version of the shotgun rider; and even if he did know, he probably could not tell which of his fellow passengers was the guard.

In announcing the preemptive attack on airline piracy, the President Friday declined to say how many of the 14,730 domestic and 125 trans-Atlantic flights each day would be guarded. He said the first contingent of guards would be drawn from government agencies such as the Secret Service and the Federal Aviation Administration.

The effectiveness of the program, the government said, depends on its secrecy so the potential hijacker will now know which flights are—or are not—guarded. It was presumed the air marshals would try to be as inconspicuous as possible.

The Pentagon said military personnel—perhaps as many as 1,000 of them—will join the force in a few days; but it said it was not known if these soldiers would report aboard the planes dressed in their uniforms.

The Pentagon also said military personnel will not carry bulky weapons—such as the standard M16 rifle. No reserve troops or National Guard personnel will be used. The airlines welcomed the presidential edict. Trans World Airlines said it would cooperate fully and United Air Lines, the biggest domestic carrier, said it had expanded its ground surveillance program as Nixon recommended.

United said a substantial number of ground detection devices, designed to catch gun and bomb-carrying passengers, were being installed at added locations in an undisclosed number of airports.

Nixon is expected to ask Congress next week to help pay for the project by authorizing a small increase in the $3-a-ticket tax on international fares and a slight increase in the 8 per cent excise tax on all domestic tickets.

John Shaffer, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, said the guards would all be sophisticated and highly trained men, whose conditioning would head off any rash of airborne shootouts.

Freedom in Cyprus for 64 Passengers

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Sixty-six former hostages of Arab guerrilla hijackers rested in freedom on Cyprus today but seemed little cheered by their personal fortune.

The freed passengers, mostly women and children, were reluctant to talk of their ordeal in the Jordanian desert at "Revolution Airport" for fear of reprisals by Palestinian guerrillas against relatives still held hostage in Jordan.

They arrived Friday night aboard a Jordanian airliner that brought them from Amman.

Looking tired and gloomy and showing little joy of deliverance from threats of death by the guerrillas, they filed slowly down the steps of the airliner.

Prominent among them was Mrs. Louise Sache of Rochester, N.Y., and her two daughters, Vera, 11 and Nancy, 7. Mrs. Sache cradled a broken arm in a cast. She left behind her 16-year-old son, Peter, who remained a hostage of the guerrillas.

"When we landed, I looked out the window and saw some flashes and thought the plane was on fire," she said. "Several people were jumping out of the plane so I jumped too."

Mrs. Sache broke her arm in the jump and was taken to a Roman Catholic hospital in Amman for treatment.

The 66 who arrived here were one of three groups freed from among the 414 hostages originally held by the guerrillas as ransom for the release of their Palestinian commando comrades held in various countries, was flown out of Amman Thursday.

Others besides Mrs. Sache still had relatives detained by the guerrillas.

One group of 22 passengers, including one English girl (BOAC) airliner arrived today in Beirut. The 21 were mostly Indians, officials said in Beirut.

Another of 21 passengers released from the hijacked British Overseas Airways (BOAC) airliner arrived today in Beirut. The 21 were mostly Indians, officials said in Beirut.

Judgeship Nomination for Larkin

By LYNN MULVANEY

ALBANY

Kingston lawyer John L. Larkin was selected over three other candidates Friday for the Republican nomination for Supreme Court Justice, Third Judicial District. He will oppose the Democratic nominee, Timothy Fogarty of Troy on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Larkin's designation, made in the afternoon at the Third Judicial District convention in Albany, culminated a long battle in which Sullivan, Rensselaer and Columbia counties also sought to nominate their own candidate.

Ulster's designee, who was nominated by another Kingston lawyer, Howard C. St. John of St. John, Ronder and Bell, was victorious by a 38 to 10 vote with Rensselaer County the lone holdout.

One other Rensselaer County vote went to Sullivan County Judge Benjamin Newberg.

Columbia County, with four votes, at first suggested its own candidate, County Judge William Christiana, but later gave its votes to Larkin; Sullivan County with four votes nominated Judge Newberg and Rensselaer fielded Thomas Morgan.

Albany County's 20 votes and Ulster's eight votes proved enough, however, to elect Larkin and the dissenting counties climbed on the bandwagon along with Greene County which cast four votes for Larkin, and Schoharie which gave three votes.

A unanimous vote for Larkin was called for by Sullivan County and approved.

Today it is expected that the Conservative Party also will give its endorsement to Larkin in the form of a nomination, according to Harry Hoffman, Ulster County Conservative Party chairman.

A feather in Ulster County's cap, Larkin's nomination was predicted by The Freeman in July, prior to the August meeting of the seven GOP county chairmen, who also voted 43 to 11 at that time in favor of Larkin.

Larkin is a partner in the law firm of Larkin and Vogt with offices at 42 Main Street.

A former assistant district attorney for Ulster County and a past president of the Ulster County Bar Association, the post he seeks is salaried at $36,600 annually.

Bids for New Firehouse $100,000 Over Estimate

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Bids for the proposed fire station near the new city hall in Broadway East came in at a total of $284,830 Friday afternoon, more than $100,000 over estimates.

The fire commissioners had a total of $170,000 for their new firehouse which they planned would replace Cornell Station on Abel Street, one of the city's oldest firehouses.

That limit was exceeded with the opening of the first bid for general construction from George H. Swart Inc. of Kingston, at $206,239. Swart, however, was not the low bidder on general construction, it was The Larsen Company of Kingston, at $197,740. There was an alternate bid to that base bid, the removal of median and paving pany did not bid on the alteration.

Low bid on the plumbing contract was Bank Brothers C. B. Strain and Son Inc. of Kingston, at $37,000. There were two alternatives in that category, one for R. J. Welsh and Son of Saugerties only $100 higher than the apparent low bidder, C. B. Strain and Son Inc., Kingston, was next at $29,200.

There were 21 bids submitted with the electrical bids drawing the most proposals. Apparent low bidder on that phase of the construction was Joe E. O'Connor of Kingston at $16,990. There was an alternate bid for a different grade of wire which if used would reduce (outlets) at a unit price of $50 for that amount.

The low bid for the sprinkler system came from Bank Brothers at $4,800. The firm stated bids that it would supply 60 heads (outlets) at a unit price of $50 for that amount.

Second low bidder was Grinnell Electric of Albany at $5,615, supplying 73 heads at a unit price of $30.

The bids were opened at Central Station in the presence of Fire Commissioners Morton Finch, Fred P. Reis and Donald S. Matthews, along with representatives from the Harry Halverson architectural firm, the omission of air conditioning equipment which would have reduced Strain's apparent low bid of $5,216 and a second alternate to omit the entire air conditioning system designed for the building which would have reduced Strain's bid by $12,203.

Two Men Victims of Orange County Highway Fatais

BY JON POWERS

MIDDLETOWN — A 35-year-old Middletown man and a 42-year-old Congers, N. Y. man were the victims of two separate highway fatalities recorded by State Police Friday near the Orange Co. communities of Monroe and Middletown.

Richard Coggin, 35, of 74 Linden Ave., Middletown, was killed Friday night when his car, which troopers said was traveling at a high rate of speed, crashed into a telephone pole and a bridge abutment on East Main Street in the town of Middletown, just outside the city limits.

Police said Coggin was traveling west on East Main Street when his auto ran off the right side of the road and traveled approximately 100 feet on the right shoulder before striking a telephone pole. The car, police said, then veered back onto the road and crashed into a bridge abutment nearby. The car then returned to the road for the third time, where it was sideswiped by another vehicle following behind.

The operator of that second vehicle, identified by police as William Gumaer of 10 Anthony street, Middletown, was issued a summons for driving while intoxicated. He was not injured in the crash.

Coggin was pronounced dead at the scene by Orange County Coroner Edward Pekar. State Police stated that no verdict as to the cause of death has yet been listed and the extent of the victim's injuries were not noted.

Several hours earlier a Rockland County resident was killed when he ran into the rear of a New York State Department of Transportation dump truck on Route 17 exit ramp near Route 208 in the township of Monroe.

The truck, said state police from the Monroe sub-station, had pulled into a right side exit lane off Route 17 and was decelerating when the accident occurred. A car driven by Jerome Bryer, 42, of 126 Water's Edge, Congers, followed the truck onto the exit ramp and then crashed into its rear.

The truck was operated by Nathan Balcom, 39, of Monroe. Balcom was not injured in the crash.

Bryer was pronounced dead on arrival at Arden Hill Hospital in Goshen at 4 p.m. Friday. The accident, said police, occurred at about 3:15 p.m. No verdict has yet been issued as to the cause of death and police declined to note the extent of Bryer's fatal injuries.

Memoriam
In loving memory of my husband, Charles Langan, who passed away two years ago, September 12, 1968. To those who have a loved one, Cherish him with care. For you will never know the heartache. Till you find he isn't there.

WIFE, AGNES
Memoriam
In loving memory of my dear father, Fritz A. Salin, who passed away two years ago today, September 12, 1968. For those who have a father, Treat him with loving care. You will never know How much you miss him. Till you see his empty chair.

DAUGHTER, FRIEDA HALLISEN
Memoriam
In loving memory of my husband and our father, and grand father, Harry L. Lee, whom God called two years ago, Sept. 13, 1968. You left me very lonely and all I have is memories, that I can call my own. Our children are thoughtful and kind but this does not heal the lonely heart you left behind.

WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN
Memoriam
In loving memory of grandmother, Mary Catherine Higby, whom God called September 12, 1955 at age 88. It's fitting and proper remembering (annually) the departed who served their generation well, whose hands are eternally at rest and labored not in vain. I admired her patience and cheerfulness in times of suffering and tribulation, her sincere and genuine love which will never die. Well done good and faithful servant; enter into the joy of thy Lord.

Chester Morris Dies, Was 'Boston Blackie'

NEW HOPE, Pa. (UPI)—Veteran actor Chester Morris, the dapper detective "Boston Blackie" in movies, was found dead here Friday in a motel room. He was 69.

Morris, who was starring at the Bucks County Playhouse in "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," died of an overdose of barbiturates, County Coroner Samuel B. Willard said. No autopsy was ordered.

"Boston Blackie" Morris' body was found on the floor of his room by Lee R. Yopp, producer and artistic director at the playhouse, who came to meet the actor for lunch.

A playhouse spokesman said Morris had talked by telephone with Yopp and other members of the playhouse staff at mid-morning.

Morris was a veteran of more than 60 films, including 26 "Boston Blackie" feature movies.

He was born Feb. 16, 1901 in New York to William Morris and Etta Hawkins. Both parents were theater performers.

His first stage appearance was at the age of 15 with Lionel Barrymore in "The Copperhead." After two more parts he joined his parents, two brothers and a sister in a comedy sketch called "The Horrors of Home."

A Man of Magic
George M. Cohan took over Morris' personal management and brought the young man back to New York where he appeared in "Yellow and the Home Towners."

His biggest hit, "Crime," played in New York for a year and led to a film contract.

He then moved into television and starred in "Captured," the "Studio One" series, "Suspense," "Danger," "Checkmate" and "Rawhide."

Morris made more than 380 USO appearances during World War II, demonstrating his ability as a magician. He considered magic his hobby and practiced it from the time he was 12. He was considered a top amateur magician.

Morris was married in 1926 to actress Suzanne Kilbourne and they had two children. The marriage ended in divorce in 1939.

The following year Morris met and married Lilli Kenton, the original Chesterfield girl. They had a son, Kenton, born in 1947.

Renovation Program Proposed by Lenefsky

SAUGERTIES in Ulster and Dutchess Counties are deteriorating while business moves out to the suburbs. I proposed this week that New York State create a small business renovation program which would make available low interest funds to help small businessmen modernize their stores.

Taking his campaign for the State Senate into Saugerties, Lenefsky said "the main streets and broadways in most of our villages, towns and cities are deteriorating while business moves out to the suburbs. I would rather renovate than demolish," said Lenefsky. "Most of the older stores and houses are more attractive and better built than are new ones. With a little help from Albany we could again turn our downtown districts into commercially exciting and profitable areas."

"We can get our fair share from Albany," said Lenefsky, "only if we have a full time State Senator involved in our problems in Ulster and Dutchess Counties. The people will never get their money worth from the declared Lenefsky, "but there are many times when a renovation program would be more appropriate."

Lenefsky started the day in Saugerties by greeting Ferro-cube workers at 7:15 in the morning.

KINGSTON out of his moccasins" and took off barefooted out of the building, being transferred from the city court room back to his cellblock, darted away from escorting officers this morning and led police on an hour-long chase that finally ended when the youth was collared near the railroad tracks behind city hall.

Francis Ross Carey had appeared before City Judge Hubert Richter moments earlier to answer a charge of petit larceny. His case was adjourned until next Saturday and the youth was led out of the courtroom. In the downstairs corridor of the building Carey, according to police, "jumped right

Kingston Football Squad Has 'New Look'

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON
Kingston High School's varsity football coach, Tony Badalato, will be making his coaching debut Saturday, Sept. 19th, as the Fighting Maroons travel to Troy to take on a powerful Troy High School eleven.

However, Badalato won't be the only one making his initial appearance. Therein lies the problem, and the key to Kingston's 1970 gridiron fortunes. Of the 40-man squad, only nine players with previous experience will play. The rest of the squad will be made up of newcomers and junior-varsity and freshman players from last year. "Graduation really took its toll on us," said the new coach. "This season has been considered a rebuilding year. We lost 14 lettermen from last year's squad, seven of them were All-DUSO League caliber. Considering the numbers factor, plus the fact that we are instituting a new offense, I don't expect anything great. Good, but not great," he said.

ALL-DUSO selections that were lost to graduation are: Marshall Byrd, halfback; Bob Clausi, lineman; Tony Cicoria, fullback and line backer; Larry Papillo, Mike Sabino, Dale Whitman and Paul Saehloff, linemen.

Also missing will be Rick Sorenson, quarterback, and Earl Edmunds, star defensive back.

John Tiano halfback and line backer, is the head returnee. Tiano, whose defensive ability was never in question, really blossomed as a running back and was good enough for an All-DUSO mention.

A power runner with break-away speed, Tiano was pressed into backfield service when Byrd suffered an ankle injury in the second game, sidelining him for most of the season. He is a junior.

The heir-apparent to Byrd's position as scatback is junior speedster Joe Reilly. Reilly, as a sophomore, saw limited action, but had some flashes of brilliance. Of course, any break-away runner needs a good, blocking line and if Badalato's behemoths can spring "Little Joe," the results could be devastating.

While the starting quarterback position is still up for grabs, it appears that senior Ralph Perry may have an edge over junior Glen Littlefield, though Badalato was non-committal.

"We have instituted a new offensive system," said the mentor, "and Glen has been injured, seeing limited action in practice." This statement would indicate that Perry has the inside track for the starting job unless Littlefield recovers in time and can make his move.

Junior Wesley Cole will also see plenty of backup action in the backfield.

The offensive line will have veteran players Don Lackaye at end, Bill Altenweiller at guard and centers Tim Palen and Jerry Watzka. All four are seniors.

Expected to see action are: Dave Kawsnoski, senior split end; senior tackle Tom Brocco and junior tackle Charles Kaune; John Harris, senior of defensive tackle.

Experienced players returning to the defensive unit are: senior tackle John McCumber; Brocco; and linebacksers Tiano and Altenweiller. Also listed on defense are halfbacks Ralph Longendyke, a senior, junior Abe Robinson and Harold Pines, junior line backer.

Fifty-five candidates came out for the squad that will be cut to 40.

"We plan on opening up the offense and throwing more," said Badalato. "On defense we will remain about the same. We are trying to instill pride and desire for victory in our boys and they seem to be quick to pick things up. We will have a good season and if we can make the most of any opportunities, well, anything can happen."

Badalato figures that his toughest opponents will be Newburgh, the defending DUSO champs and Middletown.

The schedule:

Date	Opponent	Place
Sept. 19	Troy	Away
Oct. 3	Linton	Away
17	Gloversville	Home
24	Poughkeepsie	Home
31	Middletown	Away
Nov. 7	Amsterdam	Home
14	New Rochelle	Home
	Newburgh	Away

Paterno Expects Lot from Captains

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Penn State football coach Joe Paterno expects a lot from his captains. And one of them is Warren Koegel of Glasco, N. Y.

"The team captain has a lot of responsibility, particularly these days," the Nittany Lion coach says.

"The captain has to have one foot in the players' locker room and the other foot in the coaches' locker room. He has to act as a liaison between the coaches and the players. On the other hand, we expect the captain to provide leadership on their own."

Two Excellent Choices
Paterno feels he has two excellent men to perform those difficult duties during the 1970 season.

"Jack Ham and Warren Koegel are very mature leaders," Paterno says. "Our best captains have been the quiet, steady types."

Ham, a pre-season All-American selection as a linebacker, is the defensive captain. Koegel, a two-year starter at center, leads the offense. He is also certain to draw many All-America ballots.

No Extra Pressure
Ham and Koegel won't admit to any additional pressure on them as captains, but both are aware of setting an example for the other players.

As offensive center, Koegel calls the huddle. "That gives me a chance to get the offense together and get everybody ready to go before the quarterback takes over," the 240-pound senior says.

Koegel, who is always among the leaders in blocking grades given by the coaches after each game, isn't bothered by the anonymity of an offensive lineman.

"Lack of recognition doesn't bother me," the huge lion says. "Offensive linemen know that they are going to be noticed only when they miss a block. Of course, you like to read about big holes in the line and as long as the backs and coaches know what kind of job you're doing, that's what is important."

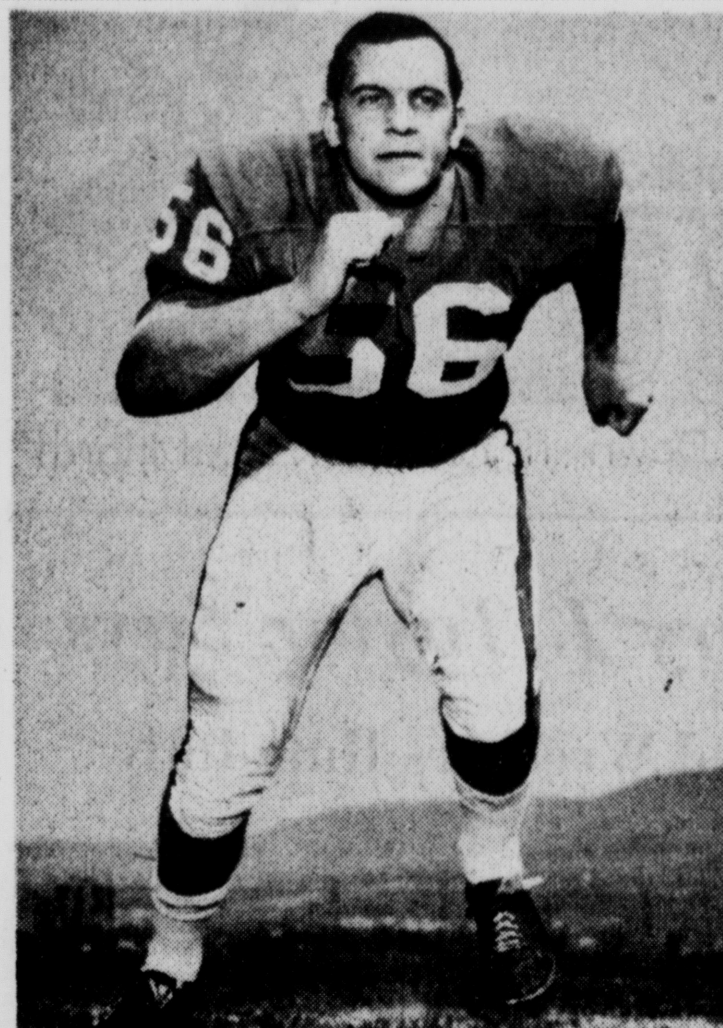

A Different Approach
"Offense requires more finesse than defense," he notes. "Any little mistake you make on offense can cost you, but on defense you can be more aggressive and recover. The offense should be like a big machine—every part functioning perfectly."

Ham, a rangy, 220-pound outside linebacker, will be calling the defensive signals in the Sept. 19 opener with Navy at Beaver Stadium and at West Point on Oct. 24 against Army.

Some Added Pressure
"Calling the defensive signals is a little added pressure," says Ham. "I'm aware that I have to be the leader out there. I've always been kind of quiet, never the gung-ho type, but I have to set an example."

Nicknamed "Moose," Koegel is a native of Glasco, N. Y., a suburb of Kingston and attended Seaford High School on Long Island. He is majoring in secondary education with the emphasis on science.

Ham, a product of Johnstown's Bishop McCourt High School, prep year at Massanutten Prep in Woodstock, Va. He is an insurance and real estate major in the College of Business Administration and hopes to become a licensed real estate broker.

Tenn. State Downs Alcorn

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Penalties and the pinpoint passing of quarterback Jim Gilliam were the keys to Tennessee State's 24-14 upset victory over Alcorn A&M Friday night in the second annual Freedom Football Classic at the Coliseum.

Before a crowd of 43,772, Alcorn was penalized 15 yards for pass interference and the other a roughing the kicking assignment—provided the Tennessee State Tigers the momentum to roll up a 14-0 lead in the first 13 minutes.

Gilliam fired an incomplete pass intended for David Davis in the end zone, but the Braves' Richard Sowell was charged with interference. That gave the Tigers a first down on the one.

Gilliam completed seven passes in a 67-yard drive of nine in the end zone, but the Braves' Richard Sowell was charged with interference. That gave the Tigers a first down on the one.

Nordstrom Unloads 660 Central Series

Carl Nordstrom slammed a 246 solo and 660 series to lead both divisions of the Central Rec. League. His other games were 225 and 189. His top pinning carried Rapp Van Lines to team highs of 939 and 2718.

GAIL SCHULTZ posted a career-first 533 and high solo of 197 in the Sawyer's Women's League. Team highs were not reported.

JOAN SMITH decked 202-509 to pace Friendship League bowlers. Evelyn Gross had 500 even and Doris Reynolds hit 208. Team highs were not reported.

BILL TOCHTERMAN unloaded a 267 solo in Mannie's Barber Shop League. The league high triple and team highs were not reported.

SHIRL CHRISTIANA powered 186 and 536 to lead the New Dorp Keglerettes. Ellen Bruchholz picked up high single of 209. Team highs were Grason's 612 and Toman's 1647.

HIGH SCORERS in the Kingston Hospital League were Evelyn Van Gaasbeck 486, Rosemarie Eckert 179, Len Codding 325, Dr. Arthur Carr 190.

LEE GAYLOG rapped 504 off 189, 142, 173 for high slam in the IBM Rainbows. High single went to Pat Iacovazzi with 198.

FRED McFEE decked 229, 175, 198 for 602 high slam in the Miderama League. Gene Bell had a 245 solo. Team highs were Unnamed 914 and 2621.

Southern U. Gains Victory

NEW YORK (UPI)—Southern University quarterback Howard Hall threw two touchdown passes to flanker Allen Dunbar Friday night to lead the Jaguars to a 21-6 victory over North Carolina A&T in the third Invitational Football Classic at Yankee Stadium.

Hall, a junior, passed 35 yards to Dunbar in the first period following a fumble recovery by end Lee Hudson and then connected on a 26 yard toss at 2:27 of the final quarter to clinch the victory for Southern.

Hall, named most valuable player in the game sponsored by the Football Coaches Foundation, completed eight of 11 for 143 yards. Dunbar caught four for 94 yards.

State Early Bear Season

ALBANY
Another early black bear season in northern New York State has been announced by Henry L. Diamond, Commissioner of Environmental Conservation. As was the case last year, the season runs from Oct. 1 through Oct. 15.

The Department of Environmental Conservation has authorized the special season, under legislation enacted in 1963, in order to alleviate problems caused by bears. Over the past summer, the Department received a number of complaints about bears causing damage to private property.

Ulster County is not included in the early season, but bear may be taken in all of Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Hamilton, Lewis, St. Lawrence and Warren counties, as well as the northern portions of Herkimer and Oneida counties.

Application forms for the special hunt will be available at all license issuing agencies by Sept. 10. Completed applications and the $1 permit fee should be sent to the Department of Environmental Conservation in the envelope provided. Permits will be sent out by return mail. The permit fee should be in the form of postal money order, cashier's check or certified check.

Applications must be postmarked no later than Sept. 21. Permit holders are entitled to take one bear during the special early season in addition to the one legally allowed during the regular big game season.

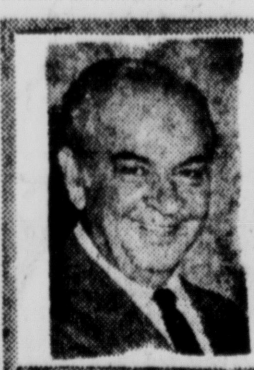

If a bear is taken under the special permit, the hunter must within 48 hours report the animal by toll-free call to the Department.

Many big game hunters view the early bear season not only as an opportunity to bag a valued trophy, but also an excellent time to scout the area they plan to hunt during the regular season.

In addition, hunters stand a significantly better chance of taking a bear during the early season than during the regular big game season. Last year one hunter in 210 was successful during the early season, while about one in 350 takes a bear during the regular season. Twenty-nine bears were taken during the 1969 early bear season.

Although bears may be frequent visitors at town refuse disposal areas during the summer months, they most likely will not be found at these locations when the early bear season opens. Hunters should concentrate on the beech ridges and those areas where bears will be seeking their favorite foods—apples, berries and other fruits and nuts.

KHS Athletic Staff

CHARLES J. TIANO

A perusal of the Kingston High School athletic staff appointments for the 1970-71 semester makes it abundantly clear that things have changed a bit from the days G. Warren Kias was varsity coach in baseball, basketball, football and track.

The old adage that things change was never truer. And the coaching revolution at Kingston High is no greater than at other area schools, we suppose. The age of the specialist is upon us, forged in a new aura of enlightenment.

TAKE THE KINGSTON HIGH coaching staff on the varsity level, for example. With the appointment of Tony Badalato as football coach, after only one year in the Kingston system, one begins to realize that new vistas have opened up and the opportunities on the Kingston staff are many. It wasn't always that way.

Now that may sound like a strange statement, but consider the facts: It was only two or three years ago that all or almost all the varsity athletic coaching at KHS was done by three or four men, who also taught phys ed at the KHS MJM complex.

AT ONE TIME—and not too long ago—the setup was something like this. Varsity football, wrestling and track were coached by Bill Hurley, the present athletic director. Jack Gilligan handled varsity basketball, cross country and tennis.

Varsity baseball and Jayvee basketball was the domain of Mike Rienzo, who taught at MJM at the time. Jayvee football and Jayvee basketball were handled by Ron Cole, who taught P.E. at Kingston High.

Varsity skiing was taught by Dick Schaefer, one of the most dedicated men we know. He taught at KHS in the academic department. About the only non-KHS men involved on the varsity level were John Hunter (soccer), Ron Gabriele (swimming) and the late Harold (Hap) Hathaway in varsity golf.

HAVE THINGS CHANGED? Well, take a look. True, the P.E. men located in the high school still have a good share of the coaching duties, but the work is more evenly distributed than ever before.

Examine the 1970-71 coaching lineup on the varsity level at KHS: Tony Badalato (KHS), football and skiing; Ron Gabriele (JWB), swimming and cross country; John Hunter (EL) soccer and tennis; Mike Rienzo (KHS), baseball; Ed Pfeiffer (GWS), wrestling; Ron Cole (KHS), baseball; Floyd McCormick (JWB), golf. The baseball assignment will probably go to Dean Short, who teaches in the elementary system.

Where the Age-18 Vote

In the debate over the merits of lowering the voting age to 18, little or no attention has been given to where these new voters will cast their ballots. But now communities throughout the country are showing concern because of its implications.

In the main, college communities are the ones affected. Large numbers of students arrive each fall and—aside from vacations—remain for some nine months. If they are allowed to consider the college town or city their legal "home," they can exercise an influence in political affairs that could be substantial, particularly if the college is located in a community of relatively small population. These new young voters could approve increases in expenditures that could raise hob with the tax rate in particular and the financial structure in general. Yet, as soon as they receive degrees, they will be taking off for their "normal" homes or to some other place to begin a career. And they couldn't care less about the destruction to buildings or conditions back in the "old college home town." The debt they helped incur would have to be paid off by the taxpayers who stayed behind.

Wisconsin officials are among those who are concerned about the problem, and they're hoping for a law that would permit such "non-permanent" residents to vote only in their true home communities. The difficulty here is that the law in general leaves it up to an individual to determine his legal residence; he's in trouble of course, if he votes from two separate addresses—but he has great latitude in deciding where he lives.

The crux of the situation is the relatively strong voice that can be exercised by an individual where a community's electorate is relatively small. The same objection could not be posed in state elections, and even less in federal ones. The answer may be that "transients" will have to be ruled eligible only to vote in state and federal elections while at their temporary residence; if they want to participate in a purely local election, it will have to be in that community where they reside "when school is not in session." This may prove an inconvenience, but it's preferable to allowing persons who are just "passing through" to put a millstone around the neck of people who plan to be there a long time.

Prosperity and Crime

Sweden virtually abolished slums with little effect on the crime rate. Experts who once said crime can be wiped out by clearing slums and giving everyone a job admitted they were wrong, at the Fourth United Nations Congress on Prevention of Crime and Treatment of Offenders held by representatives of 80 countries at Kyoto, Japan.

In the keynote address, France's Philippe de Sevnes, U.N. under-secretary general for economic and social affairs, asked, "Are we not building cities where the term asphalt jungle will be more than a figure of speech and where force and violence will become necessary for survival?" He cited cities where residents of apartment blocks retire from insecurity behind double-locked doors, with closed-circuit television cameras and private police.

William Clifford, a British barrister, who serves as a special advisor to the U.N. on social problems, said that it is a very new idea—that as we develop economically we are creating our crime, rather in the same way as we create air and water pollution. He cited cases in the United States where supermarket chains lose more money in shoddy goods than they made in profits. And nowadays burglars break into houses just to steal the credit cards. "You can almost tell how highly developed a country is by looking at its crime rate," Clifford said.

Crime in the streets is a matter of greater opportunity for the criminals, the experts are coming to believe. We would add the fact that prosperity brings out the criminal instinct in those who prefer to look for the fast buck than to work for a living.

Yippie Leader Jerry Rubin, convicted in the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial, put income from his best-seller book, "Do It" in a tax-free foundation. The book tells youngsters to burn their schools, leave their homes and establish a new society. The tax exemption in effect, subsidizes our own destruction with our own taxes.

Communist East Germany has decreed that midis and maxis are incompatible with the development of the female personality in a socialistic society, but the mini does. The result may be an island of 3-inch above the knee minis in a world tending to midis and maxis elsewhere next year.

The New York State AFL-CIO convention endorsement of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for a four-year term stunned his opponent, Arthur J. Goldberg. Rocky was the first Republican ever backed for governor by the two-million member labor organization.

Henry J. Taylor Says Red Wreckers Rule Italy

ROME—This geographically and strategically indispensable NATO-ally government is now, in fact, a nongovernment. It is a coalition put together on a wing and a prayer, and the coalition has all but collapsed in terms of any decisive action about anything.

The coalition leaders know exactly what the Communists are trying to achieve. They point out to me that the Red manipulators' objective is to perpetuate and enlarge, like a growing cancer, the problems that defeated 30 postwar prime ministers in this country.

As everywhere, the Red manipulators' purpose is not to build, but to destroy; not to compose, but to disrupt; not to agree, but to create anarchy. And the fact that the Italian Communist party, the largest in the Western world, still remains a minority here can be no reassurance to us in our dependence on Italy.

The Communist party has achieved a blocking position that overrides anything the majority desires. This amounts to rule by the wreckers.

Behind the scenes, the continued weakness of Italy's Socialist party is largely responsible for the Red technicians' success. There are now five major factions in that party.

Its Central Committee is bitterly divided. Each faction is at war with the party as a whole. As a result, the party seems hell-bent to commit hara-kiri and kill itself off as a stabilizing force. And that self-destruction helps ruin the convenient center-left government, which has ruled our NATO ally for the past eight years.

Some of the left-wing leaders insist to me that unless the party turns to the left, it has no future, so why not commit hara-kiri? You find them a rule-or-ruin crowd.

Even the warnings of former leader Pietro Nenni, the old warhorse of Italian socialism and of world socialism, do not sway them. Nenni once made an alliance with the Communist party. It was disastrous for him and his Socialist party as a whole.

Condemning the dangerous disunity, he made a memorable appeal to the Socialist Central Committee. Nenni insisted that if the government, the parliament and the nation itself continued to be hurled into crisis after crisis by the fratricide within the Socialist factions, the result would make Italian socialism "one of Europe's most disastrous political movements." The famous Nenni might as well have saved his breath.

As the Communists rejoice and add fuel to the complications, the coalition becomes weaker and more paralyzed as the national disaffections grow.

The industrial workers, the students and the peasants are dissatisfied. Italy's university population has doubled in the past 11 years.

There are a half-million students now waiting impatiently to see how the coalition's University Reform Bill works out. They demand changes in the poor conditions and antiquated methods.

The wage imbalance between the south and the north, and with the other Common Market countries, requires changes. The immense bureaucracy, which has become literally a third force here, requires changes. This bureaucracy has long since tried to make friends with either the government or the Italian people, and merely takes to the streets in its own special type of civil war.

In short, Italy's entire national makeup is now snouting for a top-to-bottom overhaul.

Yet these changes must be made by a government that seems to the people so paralyzed that it cannot change anything.

Accordingly, the country hears recurrent rumors of a military takeover, as in Greece, against the threat of a Red star over Italy.

The Italian forarmade is a branch of the army. It is directly under the Minister of Defense and has access to the arms and armor, most of which, incidentally, has been supplied by the United States. And the carabinieri have outposts in every Italian and Sicilian town and village. Locally based, it is a ready-made force for military intervention.

Clearly, this a nation which, above all, now desires stable government. Some look across the Adriatic and see this in the form of Tito's Red Yugoslavia. Others wonder if the answer may be the model of the military junta in Greece.

The ruling question behind the scenes is whether this crisis-inflicted NATO ally will be pushed either way into a totalitarianism and in this, tragically, come full circle.

Vietnam Peace Dividend Will Disappoint, Says Economist

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (NEA)—The peace movement's scenario has it this way: We end our involvement in Vietnam, bring the boys home and start spending all that bomb and bullet money on schools, hospitals, housing and ending pollution. Pretty soon we are living happily ever after, off again on the road to the Great Society.

Realistic? Only to a point, a point somewhere this side of the millennium. That is the conclusion of a study by Michael E. Levy, chief economist of the National Industrial Conference Board, an economic research organization.

In a report on "The Vietnam Peace Dividend," Levy contends that ending the war will bolster federal funds available for domestic civilian use by, at most, $16 billion a year (in fiscal 1969 dollars). That's not exactly a pittance, but it's not enough to remake a nation of 200 million people whose federal government has a yearly budget of $200 billion.

"The people who see the end of the war as grand solution are harboring hopes that will, I'm afraid, turn out to be excessive," Levy said. "Additional amounts of money are becoming available, but people who expect ending the war to solve all our problems will be disappointed."

Troop withdrawals have already freed part of the $16 billion dividend.

"There is a general unawareness that in a quiet way we have already absorbed part of the dividend,"

Levy explained. "The tax reform, for instance—it was essentially a tax cut—would probably not have been possible if our commitment in Vietnam had been continued at its previous levels."

Economists disagree about the cost of the war—because of inflation and the difficulty of determining what part of the Defense Department's budget (now nearly $80 billion a year) goes into fighting in Vietnam. Levy has blended several estimates, shaken them well and produced a result that puts the cost of the war in the $20.24 billion range for the year that ended June 30, 1969, the 12 months of our peak involvement.

When the war ends, however, it will not mean all that $20.24 billion has become available for civilian use.

In the classical economists' allegory, nations agonize over relative production decisions concerning guns and butter—military and civilian goods. Levy points out that when wars end, not all the guns are melted down into butter; some of them are melted down into new kinds of guns.

(A report by the federal government's General Accounting Office says the Pentagon has plans for 130 weapons projects it would like to start once the war ends. They would cost about $140 billion.)

This is what Levy calls "the ratchet effect," a historical tendency for this country to keep postwar defense spending higher than prewar levels. Since U.S. pre Vietnam defense spending was higher than levels before country's other wars, the post-Vietnam ratchet effect will probably be lower, Levy contends, but will still gobble up at least a fifth of the peace dividend.

Another eighth of the dividend will be tied up indefinitely in U.S. commitments to support the Saigon government, Levy adds.

That leaves the $13.16 billion his report indicates will become available for civilian use.

Levy says that those industries most likely to benefit from the peace dividend will be those associated with health and welfare services, food, consumer goods and construction.

Other industries—notably aircraft and ordinance makers, electrical equipment manufacturers and producers of some metals—will suffer, at least until they make the transition to peacetime production.

Assistant Defense Secretary David Packard has predicted that 1.7 million defense jobs will be abolished this year, partly because of cuts in the armed forces, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has submitted a bill that would provide $450 million to help industry make the guns-to-butter change-over.

Political decisions will ultimately decide what use the government will make of peace dividend money, Levy admits.

"An administration always reveals its priorities, and I've tried to take into account the priorities of the Nixon administration in making the report," he said.

Jack Anderson Says Nixon Plans Drastic Overhaul Of U.S. Regulatory Agencies

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is planning a drastic overhaul of the federal regulatory agencies. If he carries out his 1968 campaign pledges, a timid hierarchy of reluctant regulators will emerge from the reorganization.

The special interests simply don't like to be regulated, and in return for their campaign contributions, Nixon sympathized with them in 1968. He wrote a private letter to stockbrokers, delivered a campaign pitch to oilmen and gave personal assurances to other business tycoons that he would end "government harassment."

At stake is the tremendous economic power that the quasi-judicial regulatory agencies wield. The Interstate Commerce Commission, for instance, can authorize billion-dollar mergers between great railroads. The Civil Aeronautics Board decides which airlines will get the choice routes. The Federal Power Commission fixes the rates that millions of consumers pay for gas and electricity.

The Securities and Exchange Commission can put a stockbroker out of business or compel a corporation to withdraw from a stock exchange. And the Federal Communications Commission allocates wave lengths for radio and television which have become so valuable that station WHCT-TV in Pittsburgh, for one, was sold to the Cox Broadcasting Company for $20.6 million although its tangible assets added up to only $3.8 million.

The average citizen pays scant attention to these public guardians who are besieged instead by the lawyers and lobbyists of the corporations that are supposed to be regulated. Congressmen have additional access to the commission through back doors that may be closed to lobbyists. A pipeline company seeking a rate reduction or a Wall Street firm accused of stock irregularities will usually hunt up a powerful Senator or Congressman to put in a word with the right commissioner.

In the name of efficiency, President Nixon is now preparing to remodel and restructure the regulatory agencies. In place of the commissions that now sit in judgment on the special interests, the President would like to appoint single administrators.

No doubt this would reduce red tape and increase efficiency. But it would also give the President more power over regulatory agencies that are now reasonably free of presidential pressure.

He also wants to combine the three transportation agencies — the Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Maritime Commission and Civil Aeronautics Board — into a single, streamlined body. And he would split the Federal Trade Commission in two, separating its anti-trust activities from its consumer regulation.

This sweeping reorganization hasn't been announced, but it is being shaped in the back rooms of the White House. It has been recommended by the high-powered advisory council that the President appointed to help him streamline the huge federal bureaucracy. The council is headed by Roy Ash, president of Litton Industries — one of the corporations, incidentally, that doesn't like to be regulated.

While the bureaucracy sorely needs trimming, the public had better keep a watchful eye to make sure the fox doesn't re-design the chicken coop.

Phantom Letter

This column has now solved the mystery of TV Guide's phantom letter assailing newscaster Chet Huntley, who has retired to his boots and bluejeans out on the wide-open spaces of Montana.

Last month, we reported that the editors of TV Guide, for their August 1 edition, had prepared a vitriolic editorial attacking Huntley but had dropped it the last minute. One week later, however, the magazine published a mysterious letter bristling with language from the unpublished editorial.

The letter was signed by a "P. H. Lyon" of Montgomery, Ala., an elusive figure whom we couldn't locate in Montgomery. TV Guide editor Merle Panitt vehemently denied the letter was a fake.

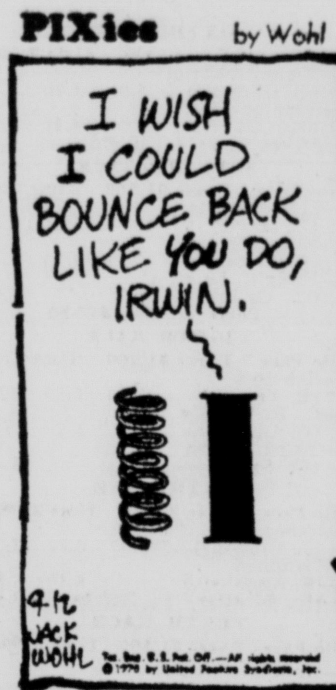

However, we have now located "P.H. Lyon" who lived in Montgomery some 20 years ago. She is Phyllis Lyon Clemenko, wife of TV Guide's letters editor, Harold "Clem" Clemenko, the same man who swore to us the letter was genuine but had been "impossible" to authenticate.

Reached by this column, Mrs. Clemenko was miffed when we asked her maiden name. "I don't believe I care to talk to you," she said, and she hung up.

Footnote: TV Guide happens to be controlled by Walter Annenberg, the former Philadelphia publishing magnate who is now serving as the U.S. Ambassador to England. Annenberg is a devoted friend of Richard Nixon, who has made no secret of his distaste for certain TV commentaries. Indeed, he had a special dislike, say intimates, for the Huntley-Brinkley show, a feeling that was intensified by quotations attributed to Huntley that Nixon was "shallow." Annenberg was in a position to know how the President felt.

Stirrings in Pyongyang William Porter, the American Ambassador in Seoul, has suggested that the Soviet may be tightening the reins on Kim Il-sung, the communist czar of North Korea.

In a confidential cable, Porter noted that Russia's UN Ambassador Jacob Malik visited Pyongyang in early August. The Ambassador suggested that the Soviets may be applying quiet pressure to keep Kim Il-sung from stirring up new trouble in Korea. Porter believes the Russians want to avoid any incidents that might discourage the U.S. from going ahead with its withdrawal schedule in South Korea.

Chile Recalls Czech Story

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Dr.

Salvador Allende of Chile is advertised as the first Marxist to win the popular vote for president in a free nation. Allende received 36.3 per cent of the votes, a plurality.

But there is a parallel. The Communists in 1946 won 38 per cent of the votes in Czechoslovakia in national (not presidential) elections. Theirs was the largest vote of any party. As a result, President Benes accepted Klement Gottwald, a Communist, as prime minister.

Two years later, in May 30, Gottwald offered the voters a one-slate ballot and won full control of the country. Benes resigned on June 7, 1948. Gottwald became president.

The later history of Czechoslovakia is well known. From then on the people had no choice. The process was irreversible for there were no more free elections.

Economically, things grew steadily worse. The country at one time had one of the highest standards of living in all Europe. In recent years, the economy had deteriorated so badly that even domestic Communists revolted against it. Russian troops put an end to this deviation.

A number of years back one of the states of India voted itself a Communist government. Here again, stagnation was the result. The Communists themselves became so divided the Red state government was unable to keep order and the Indian central government was forced to step in.

The problem in Chile, as described in the press, is that economic conditions are already bad, that many people are in want and many others on the fringes and that things have been getting worse. The government for some time has been moving leftward.

Yet Chile is a wealthy country, the world's third largest copper producer and rich in nitrates, coal, iron ore, iodine and a variety of other minerals and products.

Social changes have been attempted. Since 1965 more than two million acres of farmland have been expropriated for distribution to rural workers. The government, religious organizations and other groups have backed sizable low-cost housing programs. But these new houses apparently have made only a dent in what has been described as a shortage of half a million homes. Nationalization of the copper industry and a "commandeering" of almost all rural land for peasant co-operatives.

So then what will happen? If Red China, the Soviet Union and other major Communist countries are any example, agricultural production will stagnate, falling behind the increase in population. Industrial output may well grow in industries (such as copper) where increased production is primarily a matter of one raw or semifinished product. But if we are to judge by these same countries, management in finished or semifinished goods will not be flexible enough to meet changing demand adequately.

The new president is known as an admirer of Fidel Castro. But the Cuban standard of living (average per capita income) has, according to reports available here, gone almost steadily downward when compared with the standard of living in free Western countries.

So if there is economic dissatisfaction now in Chile, one can expect much greater dissatisfaction several years hence.

Economic deterioration under Communist rule has normally been accompanied by police terrorism, the building of a wide network of informers (say one to a block) and by a one-party press.

The election of a Marxist president, of course, does not mean that Chile will go all the way down a Marxist road. It could go that way if the new president forces through a one-slate ballot to insure the election of Communist majorities in the congress and in local governments.

If Allende (assuming that the Congress selects him with his 36 per cent of the vote as contrasted to Mr. Jorge Alessandri's 34 per cent) does not attempt a take-over, for if he attempts it and fails, then Chile may not after all, fall into the same trap as Czechoslovakia.

For as clearly demonstrated in the recent presidential election, close to two thirds of those who went to the polls voted against the Communist candidate for president.

TEEN SCENE: A Look at the Pill

By LEI

One of the characteristics of our society is the number of pills we consume, but nobody over seven years old needs to be told which out of the multitude is designated as THE PILL. Perhaps in a century, when the great scientific advances of the past decade can be evaluated in the proper perspective, the one with the most far-reaching effects won't be heart transplants, super-antibiotics, or chromosomal research, but the little Pill itself. Right now, however, it's a toss-up whether it will be remembered for its good or bad effects, direct and indirect.

Ironically, while many of their mothers and older sisters are discontinuing the Pill because of the side-effect hassle, countless teen-age girls are starting to take (or think they are taking) the Pill. Some say that this is due to the new wave of sexual freedom, while others say this freedom is due to the Pill—a modern-day version of the riddle of the chicken and the egg. Whichever came first, a supposedly simple and fool-proof method of birth control was bound to have a great effect on national morals and health.

From a moral standpoint, the question of how far she wishes to be affected by the new liberties is still one that every girl must make for herself, in the light of her background, upbringing, religion, personal convictions, and practical considerations. The Pill, of course, has no effect on the dangers of venereal disease, emotional upheaval, and social disapproval. In fact, far too many girls have found out the hard way that the Pill isn't even the ideal birth-control agent it's supposed to be.

Beyond the fact that there is a Pill, many teenagers are dangerously ignorant about the use and effects of birth control pills. Ideally, these contraceptives are acquired through a doctor or birth control center that is not only aware of these things, but willing and able to inform the girl who will take them.

Unfortunately, many girls don't get their pills from such authorized sources, and even when they do, the source may assume that the girl understands the administration and risks of the contraceptives.

Information from friends, relatives, and associates is as likely to be accurate as the old schoolyard rumors about reproduction. Supplies of the Pill from non-prescription channels are Russian roulette with five chambers loaded. Stolen prescriptions or pills, pills which a boy might claim will prevent pregnancy, or hormone pills prescribed for another condition often have as much or as little effect as muttering a gypsy spell.

In addition to the publicized dangers of cancer and blood-clotting abnormalities linked to birth-control pills, there are many garden-variety side effects that range from unpleasant but common though dangerous. These include nausea, headaches, chills, skin eruptions, weight fluctuation, eye complaints, and bleeding.

Contraceptive pills are nothing to be decided upon on the spur of the moment or through impulse. Films, pop posters, jokes, and songs have led to a rather lighthearted, casual attitude toward a medication that can end by being anything but lighthearted and casual. Any pills are serious stuff, but The Pill is more serious than most.

Bailey - Biren Wedding Announced Here

Miss Sandra Jean Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bailey of 299 Hasbrouck Avenue, Kingston, became the bride of Alan Jack Biren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Biren of 57 Laurel Lane, Roslyn Heights, on Sunday, Sept. 6, at Temple Emanuel, Kingston.

Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn officiated at the double ring ceremony. Dr. John Park, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. The Temple was decorated with an archway of flowers and greens and baskets of pink, blue and orchid gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of silk organza, fashioned with an empire bodice and long full sleeves of peau d'ange lace. The chapel length train was edged with matching lace. Her silk illusion veil was shirred to a stylized headpiece of silk lilacs. She carried a nosegay of white, pink, blue and orchid chrysanthemums with matching streamers.

Miss Patricia Bailey of Kingston was maid of honor for her sister and Mrs. Robert Goldberg, Wrentham, Mass., sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Their floor-length gowns were fashioned with high necked empire

Betrothals Reported to The Freeman

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Keppel of 43 Windwood Drive, Colden Park, Newburgh, have announced the engagement of their daughter, to George M. Richardson, son of Mrs. George L. Richardson and the late George L. Richardson of Syracuse.

Miss Keppel is a 1963 graduate of Catskill High School, Catskill. She received her Bachelor of Arts Degree in Education from the State University College of New York at Fredonia in 1967.

For the past three years, Miss Keppel has been teaching first grade at Francis Scott Key Elementary School in Arlington, Virginia. At this experimental school, unique because of the methods of teaching used and the many different nationalities of the students, Miss Keppel worked as a member of a team of teachers, while specializing in reading for the child with reading difficulties.

Miss Keppel is now working towards a Masters Degree in Reading Education at Syracuse University.

Mr. Richardson is a 1963 graduate of Jamesville-Dewitt High School, Syracuse. He received his Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Notre Dame in 1967. Presently, is completing his fourth year at Georgetown University School of Dentistry in Washington, D. C.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Bo R. Olund of RD 4, Box 394, Kingston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynette, to William A. Lahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Lahl of Port Ewen.

The bride-elect is a 1970 graduate of Kingston High School and is employed at Britts Department Store.

Her fiancée, a 1967 alumnus of Kingston High School, was graduated in 1969 from Alfred State College where he received an Associate in Applied Science degree.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Impromptu Parties Call for Careful Planning

Everyone knows it takes weeks of careful planning to have a successful dinner party. Therefore, a hostess who can entertain guests for dinner with just an hour's notice is hailed a genius, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. It can be done, but it takes advanced planning, a survival kit and a small bag of tricks. If you are occasionally faced with unexpected dinner guests, or would like to toss off, "Say why don't you all come over to our house for dinner, tonight?" it pays to learn these tricks.

First and foremost, you just keep in stock certain basics that are not to be used except for emergencies and quickly replenished when they are used. These form part of your survival kit and will include supplies for three areas that require attention: the house in general, the table, and the food to be served.

The house: Guest towels with a supply always on hand for unexpected guests. Extra bars of soap... nothing adds more spark to a bathroom than a sweet fresh cake on a clean soap dish. It says "Welcome!"

A few brightly colored extravagant paper flowers, that add a gay note to the coffee table or mantel, will give the room a lift. You may not have time to get fresh flowers.

The table: A clean tablecloth, hung on a hanger that has been covered with a towel to minimize folds, then wrapped in a plastic bag. This will eliminate any wrinkling or last minute ironing. Matching napkins, too, kept in a plastic bag will be fresh when needed.

A pair of new candles and amusing candlesticks used only for surprise guests are a festive mood.

If you have "company" dishes, wash them in sudsy water, rinse, dry and wrap in storage bags so that they can go from shelf to table.

The dinner: Offer a menu that consists of soup, main course, salad, and dessert. You will be preparing dinner in a hurry, therefore, soup is a good idea because it gives your main dish a little more time to cook. You will have stocked the major ingredients: good suggestions are, frozen, cleaned, and deveined shrimp; canned precooked ham, tuna fish, or salmon.

30th Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD FITZGERALD of 17 Mary's Avenue, Kingston, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on Saturday, Sept. 5, at the Capri '400' Restaurant in Port Ewen. Dianne Britting to Wed H. A. Scott

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Britting, Woodstock, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dianne Janine, to Howard A. Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Scott of Clifton, New Jersey.

Miss Britting is a junior at the University of Rochester where she is majoring in linguistics.

Mr. Scott recently received his masters degree from the University of Rochester and is continuing his graduate work in physics there.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Baldridge Theatre Classes Resume

Harold Baldridge, artistic director of the Woodstock Playhouse, has announced resumption of his classes for serious students of the theatre.

A class for adults in Acting Styles and Technique will be held every Tuesday evening from 8:30 to 11 p.m. An advanced class for more experienced actors will be offered if registration warrants. An interview appointment regarding these classes may be set with Mr. Baldridge at Woodstock. The first adult class will be held Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Saturday morning classes for teenagers and children commence Saturday, Sept. 19. The teenage program will again be offered from 10:11:30 a.m. The children's class will follow from 11:30-1 p.m. each Saturday. These classes include basic acting exercises, speech and voice improvement and a general survey to serve as an introduction to the art of the theatre.

'Nose Job'

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I am a young girl with a "nose" problem. Can you recommend a doctor who can improve my appearance by operating on my nose?

N.F., Pell City, Ala.

Dear NF.:

Either you or your parents — depending on how young you are — can ask your family physician or the county medical society to recommend a plastic surgeon in your area with whom to discuss the feasibility of the operation. Since you write that the operation is desired for cosmetic purposes, you must realize that such surgery can be costly. Surgeons' fees vary but, according to the American Medical Association, a "nose job" may range from $500 to $1000 — plus hospitalization. If, however, the operation is necessary for medical reasons, your health insurance (if you are covered) may help defray the costs. Your doctor can advise you whether the surgery would be medical or cosmetic.

last two years. I would very much like to have a child. Is this possible? How do I go about finding out?

R.W., Baton Rouge, La.

Dear R.W.:

Women between the ages of 45 and 50 who menstruate irregularly can become pregnant with a "change of life" baby, according to medical authorities. But these same authorities also say that a woman can no longer conceive if she has gone a full year without menstrual periods: such a woman has passed menopause and is said to be postmenopausal. Your doctor, however, is the best qualified person to answer your questions fully and accurately. Consult him.

If it is too late to have a child, remember that there are many unloved and unwanted children who sorely need maternal affection. Ask your clergyman to refer you to the proper agency where you can explore the possibility of serving as a foster mother or a volunteer to help such children.

Pregnancy at 50

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I am 50 and haven't had a menstrual period for the

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN BUREN

The fashion ads today show the girls looking like tubes. Straight up and down, no bulges, no curves, and a haughty expression. And the shoes are stubby, awkward, clumsy. What a lady with bulges does is a question. The skirts are at half calf. The minis of yesterday are still being worn defiantly by the New York secretaries but even they will succumb in time. Better dead than out of style.

Has the tube look ever happened before. I asked myself. I thought of the bustles of the Civil War, the puffed sleeves of the 1890's, the loops and ruffles and fur scarves and airplane head-dresses of other times and other customs. I looked through my costume books and there it was: 1800. A lady like a tube, straight as a string, her skirts longish and slightly draggle-tail, like so many of the longish skirts today. Moreover, although she wore a cap, she had short hair in wild points over her forehead. Her shoes were low heeled and stubby.

We should be prepared. After the tube look of 1800, the loops and puffs began to creep back. By 1840 a woman could get through a door only sideways or with her bustle held vertical. We'll have to look out for the bustles; followed by the crinoline they may be just over the horizon.

In the fur department there is good news. Even an ad for a beautiful Alaska seal coat is apologetic. You may think wearing this coat is cruel, the ad says, but it isn't. A beneficent U.S. Government has spared the seal from extinction and you may now have a coat of it.

Provided you have the money. The ads for fake furs stress the money angle. As good looking as leopard, as warm as leopard, you can hardly tell it from leopard, and the leopard is not deprived of his own personal coat. Best of all, it is cheap.

I'm not sure it is a good idea to emphasize this last point right out in public. Let the salesgirl whisper to the customer that her man-crafted leopard will set her back only a fraction of what the real article would cost her. But when she wears it, the price known only to herself, let her be able to swirl her shoulders a little, say: "Yes, it's fake, of course. I wouldn't wear real fur. And it's not so cheap, either!"

Fashion is fun. It is one of the few fun things left to us in a harsh world. Now that we know every girl has two legs and a good many of them have substantial thighs, it will be fun to cover them up and see what will happen to the sex angle. At the time of Louis XIV, when the practice of sex was gloriously irregular, a woman hardly showed the toe of her slipper under her sweeping skirts. Cover up your toes, girls, and see if anyone whistles at you. Though maybe a small budge ner and there wouldn't hurt.

New Political Party in Woodstock

WOODSTOCK

With an eye on 1971 and the local political elections the year will bring, a third party has been formed in Woodstock.

Tentatively named the Woodstock Independent Party it was formed Thursday night at an organizational meeting in the art colony.

Said Joshua Koplovitz, one of acting chairmen, "This party is intended to provide an alternative for voters who seek a constructive approach to town problems."

Might Run Its Own

Koplovitz said the party "may support individual Republicans or Democrats on the ballot." He also noted the possibility of "running our own candidates in the next local election in 1971."

Most town offices will be up for grabs at that time, including several Town Board seats.

The Independent Party organizational meeting was chaired by a rotating panel that included Koplovitz, fellow attorneys Lawrence Weinberg and Martin Henderson, and folk singer-art gallery owner Billy Faler.

Well over 100 people turned out for the meeting at Deane's Restaurant, and all agreed that the party's project would be voter registration.

"We want this organization to be a true reflection of the local community," said Weinberg. "You need to register to vote, and you need to be registered to sign our nominating petitions."

General Objectives

The organizing group also voted on the following general objectives:

- Development of recreational opportunities in Woodstock, including the re-opening of Big Deep, a six-acre wooded swimming area closed last year by the Town Board and not reopened again this year.

- Equal enforcement of the law. Some people at the meeting complained that local police were arresting more and more young people while ignoring violations committed by others.
- Protection of the natural environment, including the cleaning up of badly polluted town streams.

Stress on Domestic Problems

- A general position favoring a prompt end to the war in Vietnam and a means to bring about a refocusing of national resources on domestic problems.

Next meeting of the new Woodstock Independent Party is slated for Thursday, Sept. 17, 8 p.m. at Joyous Lake Restaurant, Mill Hill Road. All interested persons are invited to attend.

"You can be a registered Republican or a registered Democrat and still be active as an independent voter," maintained attorney Koplovitz in urging a large turnout for the party's second session.

Named as acting chairmen of the new group were: Martin Henderson, platform; Dean Schambach canvassing; John Gardner, transportation; Spiro Milanos, entertainment; Yvette Madeira, fund raising; and Howard Lewis publicity.

Saugerties Mulls Sewage Study

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

Saugerties Town Board has under consideration the hiring of an independent firm to conduct a feasibility study of the collection and disposal of sewage within the town.

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel reported to the Town Board Thursday night that he had conferred with a representative of the Pure Waters Authority on Wednesday in regard to the a feasibility study of collection and disposal of sewage in the township. In conjunction with this he proposed a resolution to the board to request how the town can solve the problems of drainage and excessive flow of effluent not being absorbed by the ground.

The board approved the resolution. Supervisor Schovel said that when the contract arrives other action of the Town Board will be taken in accordance with the recommendations of the Pure Waters Authority.

Attorney Michael A. Catalinotto presented a petition of the property owners of York Street involving about five families for extension of the Glasco Water District to include their properties. Catalinotto and Town Attorney Richard B. Overbush will confer on the matter and discuss arrangements for a public hearing.

The matter of securing snow removal contracts for three areas embracing all of the Hamlet of Glasco and Barclay Heights was discussed. The board will draft specifications and prepare for advertising of bids on three contracts.

Councilman George Turner reported that house trailers are still being installed in the township prior to securing a town permit. He proposed a list of changes in the trailer ordinance, one of which would include the requirement of the applicant to show the deed of the property site or proof of boundaries. It was noted that the board would consider the changes for possible future action. Supervisor Schovel said another application had been received for the town position of building inspector. The letter came from Joseph Walbroehl of Blue Mountain.

He added that Wilkins is highly regarded as a national speaker and expects the well-known NAACP leader to touch upon some local issues along with his main address.

Committee members working on Mr. Wilkins' visit include: Everett Hodge, Peter Rakov, Milton Reynolds, Donald MacIsaac, Mrs. Annie Jackson, Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, Herbert Shultz, Rev. James P. Veatch, Hydrech Armstrong, Rabbi Harry Z. Schechtman, Edwin Ford, Mayor Francis R. Koenig, George Betts, Mrs. De Vail H. Dunbar, Rev. John Gilmore, Robert Jones, Leonard Van Dyke, Albert T. Waters, Eddie Parker and Rev. James Priest.

In proclaiming next Wednesday "Bike to Work Day," the city directed that one lane of Fifth Avenue be reserved for bikes from 60th Street to 10th Street, and one lane of Broadway from 10th Street to Wall Street. Cyclists may return via Sixth Avenue.

The occasion, it is hoped, will arouse public support for bicycling as a regular means of transportation in Manhattan.

Fishman and his wife, founders of a group called "Bike for a Better City," would like to see permanent bicycle lanes on city streets, with convenient parking racks as well as parking space for bikes in garages.

Another ambition of theirs is to force railroads to accept bikes, so commuters could ride to the station from their home, then ride to work from Grand Central or Pennsylvania station.

"Bikers are discriminated against," Miss Green contended. "No facilities are provided for them, and they're the people who are not polluting, who are healthy and happy."

"We bike all over. It's the quickest, cheapest and most direct way to get where you're going. And it's good exercise, too."

Man Arrested On Drug Charge

ELLENVILLE — Benedito Lopez, 25, of Center Street, Ellenville is in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail on a charge of criminal possession of a dangerous drug, fourth degree, following his arrest late last night by Ellenville State Police.

Troopers W. E. Hubert and J. J. Hayes reportedly spotted several decks of heroin in the taxi the man was operating in the vicinity of Greenfield Park in the Town of Wawarsing. Further investigation revealed that Lopez had approximately one-eighth of a pound of heroin in possession.

Lopez was arraigned before Town of Wawarsing Justice Maurice Rosenstock and committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of fine pending a later court appearance.

Troopers reported that the arrest took place at about 11 p.m. Friday night.

Dear Abby Mom Corrects Letters

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: I have just about had it with my mother. A year ago I was transferred to another city, so I started to write to her about every other week. Well, mother has a lot of the time she answers my letters the minute she gets them, but here is my last letter: She returns my last letter all marked up with corrections on my spelling, grammar, etc. (She "circles" the mistakes with red ink—like a school teacher.)

Abby, I am a grown man, 29 years of age. I am also married, and these "corrected letters" make me look foolish before my wife. I can't tell my wife not to open my mother's letters because they come addressed to "Mr. and Mrs."

Don't tell me to ask my mother to stop it because she thinks she is "helping" me by pointing out my mistakes. I am a salesman, and have been making steady progress for several years with the same firm, and I don't plan on teaching English anywhere, so please print this in your column and maybe she'll get off my back.

SEEING RED IN LOUISVILLE
DEAR SEEING: You didn't ask for advice; you asked only that I print your letter. If you want to make sure your mother doesn't miss this circle it in red, and mail it to her. She might get the hint.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful wife, but she is a nut when it comes to her figure. She looks thru the fashion magazines and thinks if she doesn't look like those scrawny, underfed beanpoles, she's too fat. She's a tall woman and could carry a lot more meat on her bones than she does, but she counts every calorie she puts in her mouth.

Before we were married (15 years ago) we used to enjoy ice cream sundaes, popcorn and hot dogs. Now it's different. If I reach for a peanut she raps my knuckles and says, "Darling, you don't need that." Be a pal, Abby, and tell me (in your column) how much you think a woman who is 5 feet 6 should weigh in at.

SKINNY'S HUSBAND
DEAR HUSBAND: She should weigh in at the weight her husband thinks is "way out."

DEAR ABBY: I am an average man, 33 years of age, and I am so ashamed of my problem I could never tell anyone about it because I realize how childish it is. I am out somewhere and somebody orders "fish"—just the sight of it — if it has the head on, makes me sick and I have to leave the table. (This goes for sardines too.) Most fish come without the heads, thank heavens, but occasionally they will serve fish with the head, and that is where I can't take it.

I suppose it started when I was small and used to go fishing with my uncle. I hated to see the poor fish flopping around in the boat, or on the hook fighting for their lives. And now every dead fish with a head makes me sick. Is there a way to overcome this feeling? I have tried to force myself to look, but my stomach turns over. Thank you.

NO FISH STORY
DEAR NO FISH: Psychotherapy could probably help you to overcome this phobia, but if that's your most serious problem, you're a lucky man.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "NEAT," the man who shaved the hair off his legs and chest because he was teased about it to let it grow again. Hair-chested men are masculine and sexy looking. Anyone who would tease a hairy man is just jealous. I think deep down, every man wants a hairy body. Why, men are even buying wigs for their chest!

JERRI JANE
What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

Until mid-afternoon there can be much confusion in your life and thoughts. You would be wise to attend the services of your choice, or spend time in higher studies that with charmers and influential persons and making plans for the future that can bring you success, wealth, happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The latter part of the day is most favorable for being with friends—there can be problems with them early in the day when tact should be used in dealing with everyone. The planets are with you in the evening—make the most of this.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Relegate social activities to the evening for you could get yourself into one dilemma after another during the day. Following rules and regulations scrupulously is most important at this time. Get that expert to assist you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) New ideas are appalling, but do not come to any definite decisions until you have studied every angle of them well. Listen to what experts have to suggest. Expansion can come easily.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Being conscientious in handling obligations instead of trying to get out of them is your best mode of operating now. Show patience with loved one during day. The evening will then be just fine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't light into a partner because you do not agree with his, or her views—silence will bring cooperation by early p.m. Evening is the best time to settle some problem that arises during the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you get that work done although it is not to your liking. Keep your promise. Plan a better wardrobe for the future. Have you been taking those treatments regularly for health improvements?

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Afternoon is the best time for you to join with congenial friends for recreation, for good humor will prevail then. If you feel restless in a.m., get busy on some hobby you enjoy. Arriving home early starts you off well in the morning.

SCORPIO (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Early morning services are the best way for you to get in the right spirit of things for the rest of the day and evening. Show that you are a person who likes and thinks of others' welfare. One you love can be very charming in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to be extravagant early in the day and then you can have a fine time with persons you like. Forged practical matters for the time being. Concentrate on the social side of life as much as you can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You feel like forcing your views on others, but this would only get you in Dutch and prevent you from having a happy evening. Improve appearance before starting social activities. Did you pay that important bill?

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Trying to renege on promises you made could be very bad, so stick to them and get approval of higher-ups. The evening can be very happy for you after a rather trying day. Show that you are an excellent conversationalist.

YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful youngsters who will be most inquisitive and want to know about everything, no matter what, so be sure to teach good manners and tact at an early age, or your progeny can get into plenty of hot water. If the right training is given he or she will then get along well with others and will benefit from the help of influential and powerful individuals. Give the finest education you can afford. Work with the public is ideal here. Much refinement in this nature.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:

Utilize the early please those who have any control over your affairs. All day and evening avoid any action that could cause criticism from anyone of importance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handling affairs that add to present good is wise in a.m. Be with good pals you enjoy in p.m., the sensible ones. You can gain personal aims easily after work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There are new conditions about that are fascinating but need study before making them part of your life. Discuss them with bigwigs first. New ideas need to be made more practical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give full attention to responsibilities ahead of you and then enjoy yourself. Complete errands for mate before you go off to some form of amusement. Don't spend too much money.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get your point across to associates in a.m. best. Then get busy handling your part of any work connected herewith. Be more alert to what is going on about you. Consider the good of mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plunge into jobs in a.m. with efficiency and get them behind you. Later, join associates in pleasant recreations. Dig into your closet for the most charming outfit. Wear it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do what kin expect of you early, then you will have time for outside activities later in the day. Rid yourself of stumbling blocks to your success. Don't talk too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Early morning shopping sees you getting the best buys. Tonight you can have much fun with kin. Keeping that appointment with one who gives good advice is fine. Be on time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handling financial affairs intelligently should be on the agenda in a.m., and you then can get together with congenial friends happily. Cut down on expenses and be more modern in planning future success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is best time for recreation. Later, be more modern in improving your property. Update your budget. Try to please good friends more.

ABUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Activities of a practical nature are important in a.m. Then enjoy social events. Giving more attention to health improves vitality. Show affection for kin in p.m.

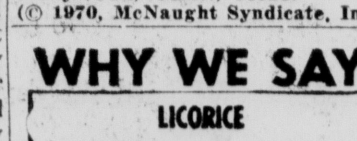

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact congenial people during the day and enlist their aid for personal goals. Improve your personal appearance. Evening is best time to get the information you want from right sources.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he, or she, will be one of those serious young people who in their early years want a secure structure on which to build the fabric of life. Later, the nature changes to a more light and airy attitude, interested in whatever is modern. More money will be made than during the first part of life. The use of the newest inventions—combined with conservative methods—will be the way for your progeny to make a fortune. Send to the right schools.

WHY WE SAY LICORICE

ROOT: This pleasant-tasting plant is named from its root. The Greeks named it "lichen" because it seems to lick its way along the ground. They used it as a medicine.

Andy, Mary T. Moore Return

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Two of television's top situation comedy stars—Andy Griffith and Mary Tyler Moore—will attempt successful comebacks in new series when CBS-TV kicks off its 1970-71 season the week of Sept. 14.

When Griffith quit his old show about a rural sheriff in order to try movies, his was the top-rated series on Video. Movies, however, turned out to be a good deal more uncertain because of the current state of the motion picture industry. Griffith's success in films was less than earthshaking. So he's back on video.

In his new half-hour series, which bows in Sept. 18 with the title of "Headmaster," he portrays the principal of a small private high school in California's San Fernando Valley. His former series was set in a mythical town with a distinctly Southern flavor.

Miss Moore also left television's weekly outings while at the top. She played Dick Van Dyke's wife in the comedian's topflight series, and it was still ranked very high in the ratings when the comedian decided he also wanted to quit the regular grind. He and Miss Moore also tried movies, but neither set the world afire.

In her new half-hour series, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," which arrives Sept. 19, the actress will play an employee of a local television station newsroom in Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The best word-of-mouth from young man torn between the Crawford stars as a veteran hippie and business worlds. "The Interns," an hour a lot of young performers, and drama about your doctors that I can tell you the show isn't premieres Sept. 18. Broderick very good.

Rondout Recreation Center: A Tale of Two Mayors

THE AL BROWN CENTER — Frankly, we didn't expect to learn anything new from Wednesday night's meeting when Mrs. Lois Alexander discussed the Rondout Neighborhood facility.

Mayor Frank Koenig had been over most of the details and what he had said made sense. The city didn't have enough money to build the center as designed in 1966 and it couldn't be named after Albert Brown, the Kingston cop killed three years ago in an auto crash because federal laws said it couldn't be done.

So we didn't figure that Mrs. Alexander, the director of neighborhood facilities for the department of housing and urban development would shed much more light on the subject. We expected her to back Koenig since Koenig, quite obviously, had gotten his information from her.

Mrs. Alexander provided a pleasant change of pace from most of the federal bureaucrats we've seen. There was no hedging. She didn't use the word "indicate" once. She got to the point and stayed on it.

She eventually got around to discussing bid procedures on a federal project making it clear that if and when the building went to bid it would have to meet certain federal criteria and that the architect would have to check with her office before advertising for bidders.

Something didn't jive. She seemed to be referring to bidding procedures only in the future tense. Just about everyone in the room knew the building had gone to bid in September of 1968.

We turned to Cliff Sinsabaugh, the 10th Ward alderman sitting next to us and asked him, "Gippy, do you get the impression she doesn't know this building went out to bid in 1968?"

"It sure sounds that way," Sinsabaugh answered. "But that must be impossible. They must have known about it."

Our next question was directed to Mrs. Alexander: "Was your office made aware that this building went to bid in September of 1968 and that those bids came in $80,000 over estimates?"

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

"Our office was never notified of any bids on that building," was Mrs. Alexander's straightforward answer.

The record shows that bids were opened in early September of 1968. A total of $365,000 was available which included the $193,000 federal share for the project, $96,000 from a city bond issue and $75,000 from the Kingston Housing Authority which had initially planned to put its administrative offices in the building.

The bids came in at $429,000, in round figures, $64,000 over estimate. The story from city hall that day in September of 1968 was that the architect, Pomerance and Breines, was to be paid a $33,000 fee. The story from city hall now is that the architect was paid $25,000 from the city bond issue, the difference apparently being because part of that $33,000 fee would have included supervision of construction.

The housing authority pulled its $75,000 out shortly after that and only recently began construction on a $160,000 building in Rondout Gardens, original site of the neighborhood center.

Former Mayor Raymond Garraghan, as it now turns out, did not notify HUD that the building had come in over estimate. He did notify them, according to Mrs. Alexander's statements on Wednesday night, that he needed another $75,000 from the federal government to make up for the money the city had lost when the housing authority pulled out. That was denied, according to the HUD official, because the money was not available.

As things now stand Mayor Koenig is being attacked by downtowners for dragging his feet on the neighborhood facility. In fact, Koenig has been an activist on that project ever since he was elected. Koenig's only crime, as we see it, was in keeping his mouth shut about what he was trying to do. He told us back in January that he was working on the project but felt that premature publicity might raise false hopes.

It becomes clear at this point, that the foot dragger was Mayor Garraghan and not Mayor Koenig.

It was Mayor Garraghan back in 1968 who could have gotten that building on its way to construction in its entirety, day care center, senior citizen center and the all-important gymnasium, if he'd just asked the federal government for what turned out to be a measly $64,000. Failing to get federal money, he could have asked the Common Council for a bond issue. The money was there. He spent $4.8-million in 1969 and by his own admission, there was plenty of "fat" in that budget.

Perhaps Garraghan was still peeved in September of 1968 over the Al Brown controversy of March and April, 1968. Downtowners had asked to have the building named after Brown, who died in October of '67. That request was granted by the Common Council. Garraghan vetoed that legislation claiming that a building should not be named after any one man. The Council voted 12-1 to name the building after Brown, over riding Garraghan's veto.

There are still downtowners who can remember a miffed Garraghan declaring "that building will never be built." Whether Garraghan meant that it would never be built because of its name or because the bids came in too high may never be known.

Neither excuse holds water. We hope downtowners will be able to forget Garraghan's blunders of two years ago and for Garraghan's sake assume that those blunders were errors of omission and not commission.

The man now is Frank Koenig. Koenig may be close-mouthed and when he does speak, he is vague. But he is sincere in his efforts to get that facility built. Koenig can be trusted.

Extradite Watson to L.A.; 'Family Man' Tells Story

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles D. "Tex" Watson, the last of those indicted for the Tate-LaBianca murders, was finally returned to Los Angeles Friday night, but too late to stand trial with Charles Manson and three female members of the "Manson Family."

Watson, 24, was arrested in his hometown of McKinney, Tex., 10 months ago shortly after he was indicated along with Manson, Patricia Krenwinkel, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten. Until Friday he had successfully delayed extradition by appealing all the way up to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, Manson and the three female codefendants had already been placed on trial. The state's star witness in the case, former family member Linda Kasabian testified that Watson was present when actress Sharon Tate and her four houseguests were murdered Aug. 9, 1969, and that he also took part in the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Leno LaBianca the following night.

She also testified that her leavemaking with Watson "was an experience like I never had before."

Watson arrived at Los Angeles International Airport under heavy security precautions and was hustled into an unmarked police car for the trip downtown to Parker Center where he was booked on seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy. Authorities said he would be arraigned Monday. Watson's attorneys had fought extradition on the grounds he could not get a fair trial in California because of the publicity surrounding the trial of Manson and the three young women. They appealed the case all the way to Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, who Friday refused to halt proceedings and ordered Watson taken from the Collin County Jail where he has been in solitary confinement for nearly 10 months.

During Friday's session of that trial, a member of a motorcycle gang who lived with the family said that Manson gave all the orders at the family's Spahn Ranch hideout. Danny DeCarlo, 25, leader of the "Straight Satans" motorcycle gang, said he lived with the family for six months in 1969, during the time the Tate-LaBianca murders occurred.

He said Manson, 35, persuaded him to join the family by telling him that anything at the ranch, including the women, were his for the asking.

"He said the girls didn't belong to nobody," DeCarlo testified. "If I wanted to make love to them, I could."

He said Manson "told them (the girls) to take off their clothes a couple of times. Pretty soon they were taking off their clothes without being told."

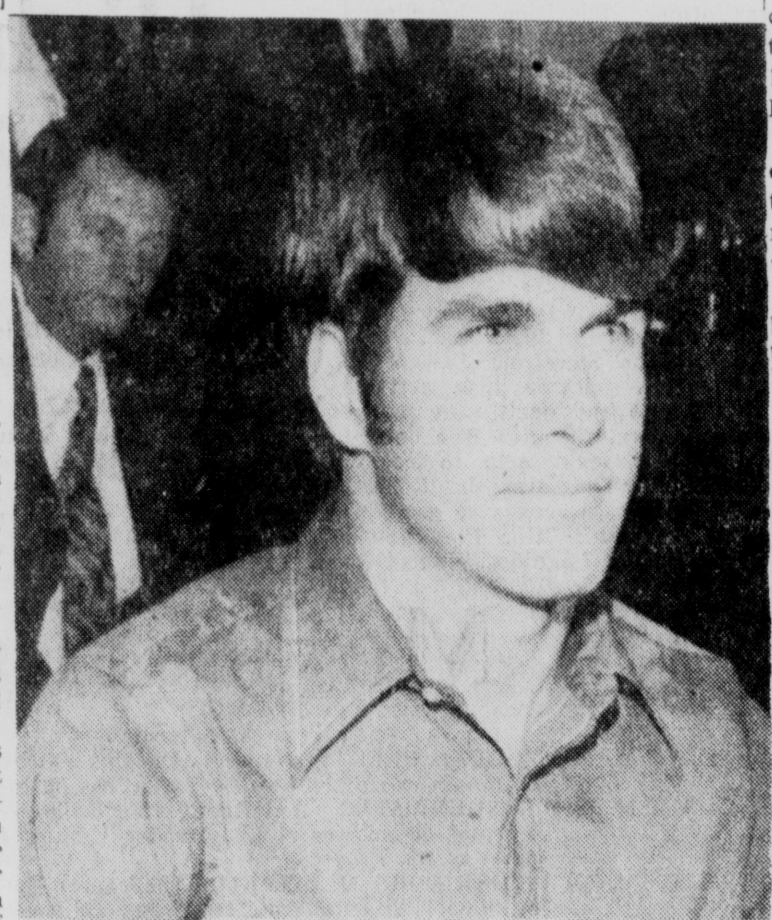

Defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald interrupted asking "what girls?"

"All the girls," DeCarlo replied.

"You kind of liked that, Danny?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Yeah," DeCarlo was delighted.

The prosecution was using DeCarlo's testimony in an attempt to establish that Manson had absolute power over his followers, including the power to order them to commit murder—although he did not actually kill anyone.

Naval Gun Explodes; Three Sailors Killed

SAIGON (UPI)—Three U.S. sailors were killed and 10 injured when a five-inch gun mount aboard the destroyer USS Lloyd Thomas exploded while the ship was shelling Communist positions on the coast of South Vietnam, the Navy said today.

The accident, which was not caused by Communist fire, happened Friday afternoon. The destroyer was firing in support of Australian troops conducting operation "Massey Harris" in expected to arrive there Sunday, the Navy said. In Saigon, five civilians were injured early today when a 4½ pound terrorist detonated a plastic charge in a residential area of Cholon, police said. Two of the victims were in serious condition.

The U.S. command reported that a Marine Corps A4 Skyhawk jet was shot down Friday morning about 370 miles north of Saigon. The pilot was missing in action.

In Cambodia, a military spokesman said a Communist land mine blew up and cut a strategic road between Phnom Penh and Saigon. The mine exploded on Route 1, 32 miles south of Phnom Penh, and left the road impassable.

To the north, Cambodian troops engaged in their biggest offensive, were expected to meet their first resistance in the 80-mile drive to the city of Kompong Thom. Kompong Thom had been under Communist siege for 60 days until Cambodian forces came in by way of the river to break through.

Commissioner Murphy Returns to Big City

NEW YORK (UPI) —For Patrick Murphy, a "cop" for 25 years, the job was just too good to turn down.

"Policemen don't dream of becoming president, governor or even mayor. But being police commissioner in New York is a common dream. The opportunity to realize it is irresistible," said the 50-year-old Murphy Friday as he accepted appointment as head of the city's 32,000-man force.

Mayor John V. Lindsay announced the appointment in New York City a few hours after Murphy had given his resignation to Mayor Roman S. Gribbs in Detroit. He was with Lindsay for the announcement. "Pat Murphy brings a unique record to the critical post of police commissioner," Lindsay said. "Probably no man in the nation has as broad experience in police command, police leadership and police modernization. Pat Murphy's record is one of firm command."

Murphy told newsmen on his arrival at City Hall, "I'm very happy to be home."

Murphy had begun his police career in New York City, rising to command of the police academy before he was drawn away, first to Syracuse, then to Washington and nine months ago to Detroit.

Gribbs said there was no way in which he could "adequately express my personal sense of loss at the resignation. We lost a good man today."

Gribbs said community leaders had come up with a plan to match the $41,000-a-year salary Murphy will draw in New York so money was not a question in Murphy's decision.

"New York is New York," said Gribbs. "It's the biggest challenge for any top police administrator."

Murphy, who will take office Oct. 1, replaces Howard R. Leary, who resigned suddenly last Friday, effective also Oct. 1. Leary has not given any reasons for the surprising resignation but there were widespread reports of friction between him and Lindsay, although the mayor denied them.

Technically, Lindsay appointed Murphy to fill the remainder of Leary's term which would have expired Feb. 21, but a spokesman for the mayor said Lindsay intended to appoint him to a full-five year term in February.

Auto Workers' Goal: $12,000 Yearly Wage

DETROIT (AP) — Vowing to get a better offer, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock returns to the bargaining table today after rejecting a new contract proposal from General Motors Corp.

The company said its offer would raise the annual wages of its average factory worker to more than $12,000 within three years.

Woodcock said it did not contain enough either in wages or fringe benefits.

The UAW chief said he viewed the chances of avoiding a strike at General Motors or Chrysler, or both, at midnight Monday as "very, very dim at the moment."

Apparently in anticipation of a possible strike at GM next week, about 600 workers at GM's truck plant in Ohsawa, near Toronto, walked off their jobs Friday night to protest lack of progress in the negotiations.

They were joined by some workers at an adjoining stamping plant and GM officials closed both plants.

Earl R. Bramblett, GM personnel vice president and its chief negotiator, said, "In the face of this proposal, the calling of a crippling strike by the union at this time would be a tragedy of our times."

Woodcock planned to go first to Chrysler today, then to General Motors.

Ford Motor Co., struck for seven weeks in 1967 has been given strike immunity this year. Woodcock said he anticipated a decision would be made late Monday on whether either of both GM and Chrysler will be struck. The union's 25-member International Executive Board has been called to meet here Sunday, and Woodcock said it would remain until the strike deadline.

GM said its new position gave a first-year wage increase, averaging 9.3 per cent, compared with its original offer of 7.5 per cent. The average hourly wage another $1.75 hourly.

In the auto industry currently is $4.02 and the companies estimate fringe benefits cost them another $1.75 hourly.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill requiring automobile manufacturers to eliminate 90 per cent of exhaust pollution by 1976 has won unanimous approval of the Senate Public Works Committee.

The clean-air bill, toughest ever considered by Congress, was attacked by Ford Motor Co. after Friday's committee action.

Herbert L. Misch, Ford's vice president for engineering and manufacturing, said the bill "is unrealistic in terms of current or anticipated technological development and poses a major threat not only to the automotive industry but to the American economy."

The bill, Misch added in a statement issued in Detroit, "leaves us enormously dissatisfied and discouraged."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, author of the measure, said unanimous approval by Public Works "whose members cut across the entire spectrum of Senate opinion," will make it easier to pass the bill. Manufacturers had contended they could not meet the 1975 deadline because of a technology lag.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., called this claim ridiculous, noting four college students taking part in the recent cross-country "clean car race," had equipped a 1970 car with adequate pollution-control devices.

IF WALLS ARE DESTINED to be painted, someone's got to do it, right? Right! In this instance, it's been done by Kingston Artist Donald Paschall, and it's drawing double-takes from motorists down Rosendale way who have spotted it on the once drab, whitewashed wall of The Chalet.

ANOTHER SECTION of The Chalet's wall shows another facet of Paschall's lively imagination and artistic ability. While area residents clash opinion-wise as to its merits and debits, the young artist waits for demand to match supply. (Freeman photos by Bob Haines).

Cornering the Rainbow Wall Market

By JON POWERS

His motivation is a means to a better end; his tools are a brush, some colors and a lively imagination; his dream is fame—but he'll settle for success; and his nemesis is people because, in the end, it's up to them.

Donald Paschall is an artist of some ability but little repute. The last part doesn't particularly bother this young man because he realizes that the kudos of an appreciative audience don't often find their way to the welcoming ears of artists who paint walls and taxicabs.

Walls and taxicabs? Figure it this way. If walls and taxicabs are destined to be painted, someone's got to do it. It's the American way.

Cornered the Market

Paschall may have cornered this particular spectrum of American business. Recent perusal of the Yellow Pages failed to reveal a single "Painting — Walls and Taxicabs" advertisement.

Despite the monopoly, Paschall's business has not been lucrative which, with refreshment from a college economics text, has something to do with supply and demand. In this case, the supply is one, but the demand is zero.

Almost zero. On Route 32 in Rosendale, on the Kingston side of the Rondout Creek bridge, there is a wall that looks like it might have been savagely attacked by a rainbow. Actually, it was painted, deliberately, by Donald Paschall of Route 4, Box 353-B, Kingston.

To prove just how bad business has been in the walls and taxicab painting business, Paschall actually approached the owner of the wall and asked permission to paint it. His rationale? "I was uptight for bread and, besides, it was an ugly wall."

A Flowering Collage

Paschall is still "uptight for bread" and there are those who would say the wall is still ugly. It's not, really, because Paschall the artist, not Paschall the painter, labored studiously for more than a month to transform that drab, whitewashed wall into a flowering collage of imagination.

He began his work in June—planning, sketching, mixing colors, recording a history of life with shades and tints. He worked deliberately, not rushed by the queries of an impatient pontiff or the threats of impending doom from a sacking army. When he was done, the walls and taxicab painting business was still as dismal as ever.

But Paschall's nine-paneled mural on the outside of the Chalet in Rosendale was a personal victory, perhaps the first, in a life that began 26 years ago in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. His first intimate encounter with the artistic came when he was 11; when he studied and copied his sister's drawings and sketches that she brought home from classes at the Pratt Institute.

Paschall worked and dreamed and worked to attend the Better Display and Exhibits School in New York City and then moved to Kingston three years ago. He has continued to work and he has continued to dream.

Stumbling Blocks

About what? Designing and making women's clothing and displaying fashions is the course Paschall is pursuing right now. His stumbling blocks are education, professional training and guidance, and the walls and taxicab painting business.

Paschall would like to attend New Paltz State University this fall as an art major. With the education, he feels, his road to success would be an easier one. But college costs money—money that Paschall doesn't have because the demand for abstract walls and taxicabs in Ulster County has taken a bearish attitude.

So Paschall is waiting; waiting for customers who have looked twice at the crazy wall in Rosendale and wanted one of their own; customers who have a drab and dreary taxicab; customers who want more on a sign than the guy across the street has; customers who have a discriminating eye for the outlandish and the beautiful.

Fall Brings Colorful Berkshire Exhibition

Over $4,000 in prizes have been announced by the Berkshire Art Association, for its 19th annual fall exhibition. This is an increase of over $1,500 more than previous years.

There will be two purchase prizes of $1,000 each and one of $500. As in the past, one $1,000 purchase prize is given by Williams College. The $500 purchase is that of the Berkshire Community College. The Berkshire Art Association purchase, formerly $500, has been increased to $1,000. Works purchased by the colleges enter their collections. The BAA purchase becomes part of the permanent collection of the Berkshire Museum. In addition, there are other awards up to $250.

This year's exhibition will be held at the Berkshire Museum in nearby Pittsfield, Mass. from Oct. 10 to Nov. 7. Juror for the competition will be Daniel Catton Rich, former director of the Worcester Art Museum. The show is open to artists from all the New England states and New York. Each artist is limited to two works and both painting in all media and sculpture are acceptable. Entry days are Saturday, Sept. 26 from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 27 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. at the Berkshire Museum. Entry forms may be obtained from the Museum and from other museums and galleries in the area.

A Director Emeritus

Juror Rich, a native of Indiana, was educated at the University of Chicago and Harvard University. He holds honorary doctoral degrees from Coe College, Clark University and Anna Marie College. Now the director emeritus of Worcester Art Museum, trustee of the Guggenheim Museum and a member of the Commission of the Arts at M.I.T., Rich is residing in New York City where he is engaged in art research and writing.

Rich has been associated with the Art Institute of Chicago where he arranged the first American exhibition of Odilon Redon and Eugene Delacroix. He was director of the Institute from 1945 to 1958 when he left to assume the position of director in Worcester.

Noted as a lecturer and writer, Rich's works include "Henri Rousseau" and "Degas" as well as articles in American and European magazines.

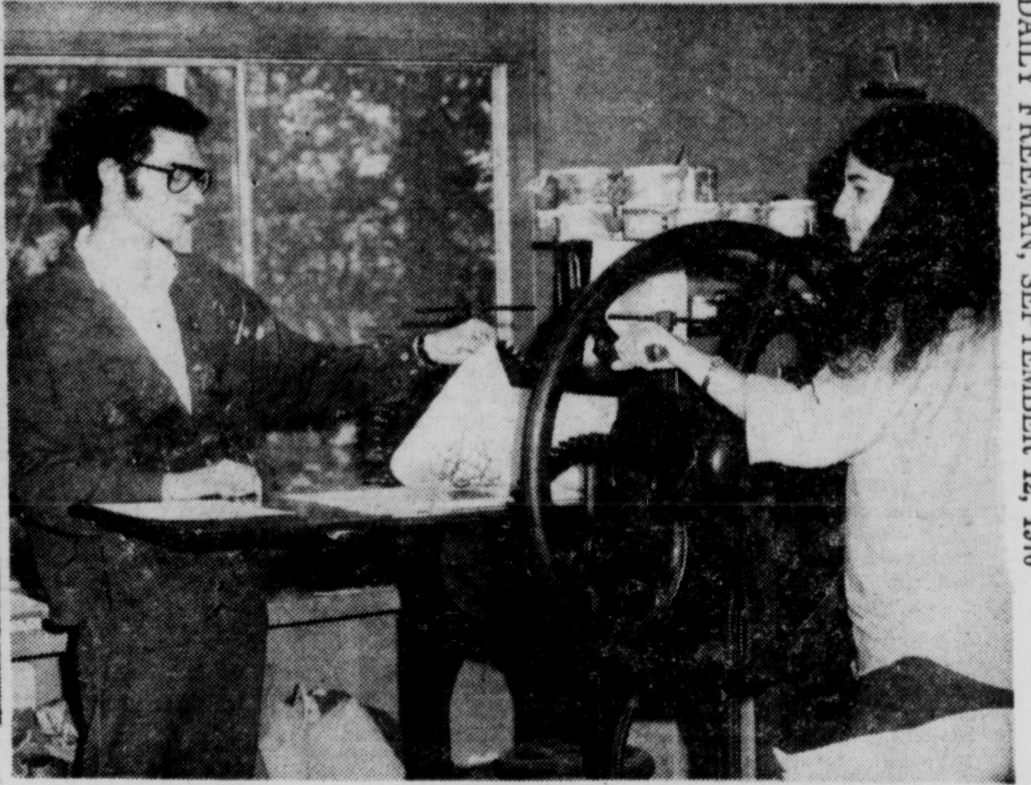

The 1970 fall show will open with a public reception on Saturday, Oct. 10 at the Berkshire Museum from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

'Print Renaissance' in a Workshop

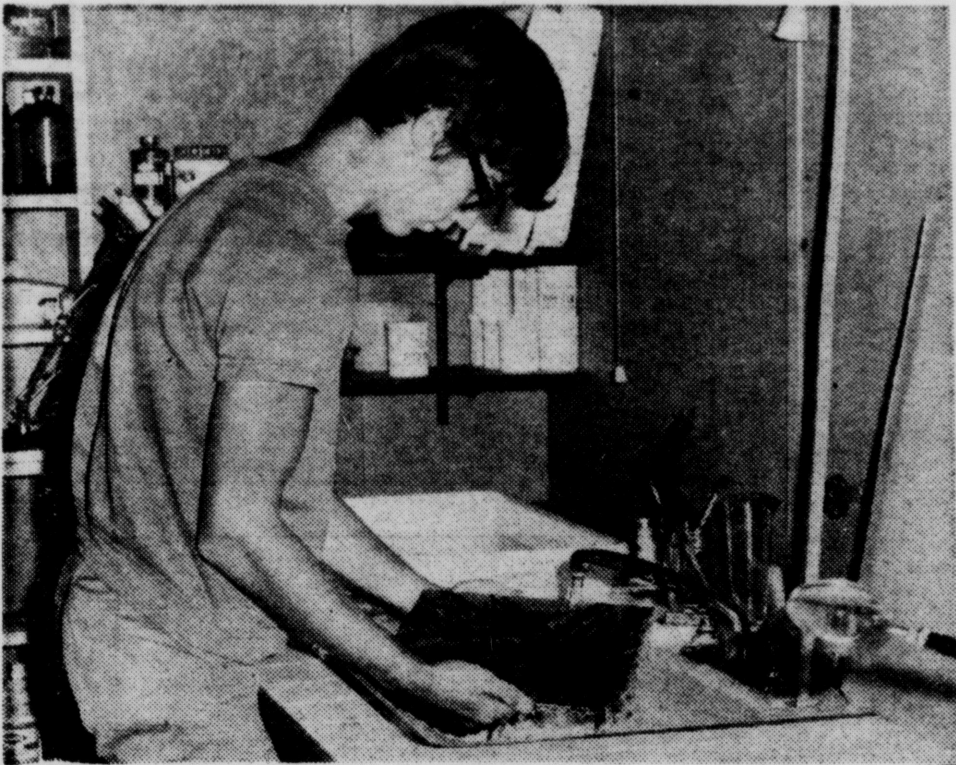

17-THE DAILY FREEMAN, SEPTEMBER 12, 1970

DISCUSSION SESSIONS are an integral part of working-together, collective-atmosphere at Woodstock's Studio Graphics Workshop. Involved here (L-R) are Robert Zoehfeld, lending an ear while painting; printmaking teacher Barbara Neustadt; Phillip Sobel and Halli Lehrer.

ETCHING PRESS is one of the most prized possessions of any graphics studio. This one tips the scales at the same weight as a grand piano and printing at the press here are Phillip Sobel and Halli Lehrer, two of the students who have studied with Miss Neustadt this summer.

THERE'S CREATIVE EXCITEMENT for the artist in seeing acid biting a metal plate. As Robert Zoehfeld puts plate through part of the acid process, he begins to get an idea of whether his basic idea will be realized in the finished print by how the acid plays with the open lines and spaces he has envisioned.

The graphic workshop is one of the few places where artists, leaving the isolation of their studios, can work together in a collective atmosphere. This atmosphere of learning and working together is working in the STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP on California Quarry Road, Woodstock, where Barbara Neustadt Meyer, well known printmaker, teaches the art of etching and engraving.

For Barbara Neustadt (Mrs. Gunther Meyer in private life), printmaking has personally been a most rewarding career. She has exhibited in most major, national print shows and in Germany, France and Japan. She has received awards from the Boston Printmakers, Society of American Graphic Artists and Hunterdon County Art Center. Her works are represented in many public collections, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Philadelphia Museum of Art, National Gallery of Art and Library of Congress.

Editions of her work has been commissioned by the International Graphics Arts Society (IGAS), Collectors of American Art, the Rockefeller-Hilton Hotel, New York City, and this year she was commissioned to do the membership print for the Woodstock Artists Association. Miss Neustadt has had one man shows in New York City, Philadelphia, Detroit, Portland, Maine, and in Woodstock at the Polari Gallery. She is listed in Both Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who in American Art.

Centuries-Old Art.

The art of printmaking is about 500 years old in the western world and even older in the Orient, but the last 25 years have brought more technical innovations than have all the previous centuries, his period, which is often referred to as the "great renaissance in Printmaking," has seen the conventional black and white print develop into multi-colored abstract materials, and involved an ever-free and more exciting approach to the techniques of printmaking. It is not unusual today for five students at the STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP to be "attacking" the same metal plate in five different ways. One of the highlights of this season's art shows was the STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP exhibit of experimental student work at the Ann Leonard Gallery in May. Miss Neustadt plans to make such exhibits an annual event.

Further evidences of this "print renaissance" are the great number of exhibitions being circulated in the United States by the American Federation of Arts and Overseas by the State Department's U.S. Information Agency. Graphic Art Centers have sprung up in many parts of the

ORIGINAL PRINTS are preferred today over reproductions by many people. Here, teacher Neustadt and student Zoehfeld put finishing touch to work of art on framing table. (Photo by Haines) country and universities have added new departments to meet demands for instruction. The public today is more interested in art than ever before. People want to be creative, see works of art, and they want to own them. Many of these people cannot possibly afford the price of an original oil painting and because they do not want to put reproductions on their walls, they prefer to buy original prints. Fine prints (etching, lithographs, serigraphs and woodcuts belong to the category of multi-original works of art. A particular painting exists in only one original, but a particular etching or engraving may exist in a dozen to several hundred originals, each as fine as the other.

The Satisfaction Involved

When asked, "What satisfaction can the student hope to get out of this field of Printmaking?" Miss Neustadt recalled the words of a friend and fellow artist, Leo Calapai, who wrote the introduction of a book on the techniques of printmaking by Woodstock artist Arthur Zaidenberg. First, it's a challenge to find out whether one can cope with the tools and materials. Second, there's the excitement of seeing acid biting a metal plate. And there's a physical involvement that can be all consuming in the creation of the idea — a realist figure of an image of fantasy. Add to that suspense of making the print; inking the plate, wiping it, the pressure on paper. And finally, the moment of climax when the paper is lifted and the print is revealed. The atmosphere is charged with the excitement of seeing the product of creation, and one feels the impulse to share the experience with others and learn their reactions. Has the idea come through? Has the acid played with those open lines and spaces? Now is the time for discipline to see the work through to its final state. The reward will be the satisfaction of mastering a new means of communication.

Among those who have studied in the four classes this summer or worked at the STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP are: Harold Baumbach, painter, John Fenton, painter-printmaker, Jacob Kainen, etcher and former curator of prints, Smithsonian Institute; art students, Laurie Duffy, Neal Duffy, Halli Lehrer, Sandy Rokoff, Phillip Sobel (winner of Arnold Blanch Memorial Prize this summer), and Robert Zoehfeld.

Custom Built Studio

Miss Neustadt's STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP was custom built in 1967. It is fully equipped. All the materials necessary for etching and engraving are available to students, including an etching press which the artist says "is one of my most prized possessions." Although the press is the weight of a grand piano, it has traveled with her wherever she's gone. At one time it was on the ninth floor of a New York City apartment. While classes are held for beginners and advanced students, the workshop is also a place to work for professionals.

Enrollment is now open for Fall and Winter classes, beginning Sept. 15. They can be taken on one morning or two mornings a week, either for a period of four weeks, eight weeks or 12 weeks. The cost is very reasonable and classes are kept small so that individual instruction and supervision is maintained. A fully descriptive brochure is available by writing or phoning the STUDIO GRAPHICS WORKSHOP, California Quarry Road, Woodstock (914) 679-8334.

A GRAPHIC WORKSHOP is part artist's studio and part chemical laboratory. Rewarding moment comes for students Phillip Sobel and Halli Lehrer as they wipe their plates; move further from the designation of pupil to that of "professional."

An Autumn Carnival Near the Waterfall

It's Autumn Carnival time again and — as Ed Sullivan says — one of the "really beeg shews" of the fall funfest season will come off up Haines Falls way.

From 2 to 10 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 19, the picturesque grounds of the Haines Falls Methodist Church will host an Autumn Fair of major proportions.

There'll be games of all sorts to challenge the skill and imagination of all carnival-goers, with a wide variety of prizes to match. Homemade cakes will be offered, along with beautiful knitted and crocheted goods, and a wide variety of fascinating old items, intriguing antiques, and assorted curios and oddments.

Prohibition Mementoes

Many of the latter are guaranteed to bring back fond memories of the roarin' twenties and the depressed thirties. Greeting cards, leather goods souvenirs, and other items in high vogue when prohibition was "In" and Jack "Legs" Diamond was making headlines, will be offered.

Youngsters, too, will find games especially for them, as well as pony rides and a funny photograph booth. To appease appetites whetted by the crisp autumn air, foods of all varieties will abound.

For Haines Falls, then, an "old fashioned" fair with something for everyone — from good food to good fun. They'll be looking for you on the afternoon and evening of Sept. 19 at the church near the waterfall.

A Moveable Feast for Dancing Feet

Western Style Square Dancing fans are flocking to clubs and halls all over the country for a moveable feast feast unprecedented in U.S. history.

And here in the Hudson Valley, trail-blazers in the art of modern square dancing are keeping our part of the country busily in step with the rest.

For those who'd like to forget the hot, sticky summer, and the television reruns that were on so long you knew them by heart, you can turn it all off now that fall is here and turn to modern square dancing — that truly American activity.

Gone the Wild Swinging

What's modern square dancing, you ask? Simple. Four couples form a "square" and dance a pattern of "figures" upon the command of the "caller." But this is dancing characterized by a smooth shuffling walk to music—dancing that has eliminated the wild swinging, liquor swigging scene of those legendary "barn dances" of yesteryear. Gone, too, is the high kicking, clog stomping steps popularized on television.

And there's good reason for the change. Suddenly, people of all ages and all walks of life have found fellowship and fun in square dancing. Couples, particularly, see it as a "togetherness" activity. Further, it's bargain-priced entertainment; not expensive at $2 to $3 per couple for an average evening's dance.

There's strong appeal, too, in the fact that square dancers dress first for comfort and second for show. Ladies find a full skirt and low heeled shoes good for starters. Men agree that a long sleeved shirt is a must. Fancy dress is not necessary, but dressing for dancing is part of the fun, and more elaborate costuming may be desired once you're past the beginner's stage.

And if you think you're too old or too young to square dance, think again. Age is no barrier in this activity. The vast majority of dancers here in the Hudson Valley are between the ages of 20 and 70, but teenagers have been known to "square up" with 80-year-olds on more than one fun-filled occasion.

Anybody Can Learn

Anybody can learn to square dance. True, like all activities, lessons are required to learn the basic movements, and a series of lessons is necessary if one is to become proficient enough for club dancing.

That, in turn, brings up the question of explaining club dancing and who can join a club after lessons sessions. Square dancing clubs have burgeoned all over the U.S., Canada and some 50 foreign countries in recent years. The boom has been so big, most clubs dance at scheduled times, usually to local callers. That means that anyone with a working knowledge in the basic movements of square dancing is welcome to attend the clubs. The language of square dancing has become to universal that hundreds of couples plan vacation tours that allow them to dance every night at a different club. And they've found they meet new people and make new friends as they go on their leisure-time way.

For Tempo readers interested in becoming members of such a club, the opportunities are virtually unlimited. Here in the Hudson Valley, clubs abound and a dancer can find a square dance almost any night of the week from September to June. Most clubs close down in the summer, but some enthusiastic die-hards continue with a less active dance schedule even then.

The chance to learn is offered by most area clubs through beginner classes. In the Kingston area, for example, the Lefooters Club conducts classes at the Hurley Reformed Church Hall on Mondays from 8 to 10:30 p.m. If you'd like to measure the level of your own interest in this swirling activity, you should seriously consider joining the Lefooters on their series of lessons. FREE FUN NIGHT, Sept. 14 at 8 p.m.

They'll treat you to a free lesson, fill you in on square dancing, let you see club members demonstrating the level of square dancing you'd be capable of should you decide to attend as a regular and complete the series of lessons.

Fun, it certainly is, and—if you'd like to join in—be on hand for Free Fun Night. If you'd like more information, contact Bill Margopoulos, whose telephone number is listed in the Woodstock directory.

Village Symposium on Early Farming

Only a few highly trained men can explore outer space, but many of us can devote our leisure time to exploring America's past.

One of Tempo's favorite places for doing just that is Old Sturbridge Village, that living museum of early New England at Sturbridge, Mass.

Its picturesque environs are a delight in any season. But we find ourselves returning there most often in the fall. Somehow the lights seem brighter, the people warmer, the entertainments pleasanter and, of course, that's when the harvest season is in full swing.

Autumn is, to us, the most beautiful season at Old Sturbridge, an outdoor museum that has kept intact the early farm life in America during the years from 1790 to 1840. From mid September through October, the Sturbridge landscape is transformed into a blaze of color. There's a festive air, bursting with harvest activity. The flaming leaves of fall's foliage add a charm to the old buildings with shades of red, orange and gold; the fields are filled with pumpkins, squash and apples; and the smell of sweet cider fills the air.

The Village is a delightful and colorful place to visit on an autumn weekend when the days are pleasant and warm, the air clear, and the nights crisp. Blue skies, fleecy white clouds and a mellow sense of ripeness do their share of highlighting the slow pace of life that envelops the museum grounds.

The bracing air of September and October will bring three special events to Sturbridge to be enjoyed in addition to its regular daily offerings.

Some Tempo readers, we are sure, will want to know that the Village will be the scene of a national symposium on early American agriculture for three days from Sept. 16-18. The program, "A Symposium on American Agriculture, 1790-1840," will bring 25 historical scholars to speak on various phases of the agricultural past in the U.S. Along with the speeches and commentary, there'll be receptions, luncheons, buffet dinners, and tours of the museum's working farm and museum exhibits.

It's open to all, but advance reservations are recommended.

Right on the heels of the symposium comes Friends' Day, Sept. 19, with musical programs, martial band music, slides of the carding mill days, a reception and tea, and special demonstrations. Here's a day filled with old-fashioned activities such as horse-shoeing at the Blacksmith Shop, lye-making in the farm area; shake-making on the Village Green near the barn; preparation of period foods in the Towne House summer kitchen; and an exhibit of apple varieties which originated prior to 1840 in the carriage shed.

Another perfect time to visit will be on Antique Collectors' Weekend, Oct. 23, 24 and 25.

This attraction is in its 12th year; features talks and workshops by authorities in such fields as furniture, pewter, wall painting and paints, lighting and historical archaeology, with a special evening musical program.

For further information about any of these events, write the Secretary of Special Events, Old Sturbridge Village.

And, while you're at it, you might want to make a reservation for Thanksgiving dinner, 1971 at the Village Tavern. That's right—1971! Seems all reservations for Thanksgiving, 1970 were filled in April of this year.

At Phoenicia Show: Oils, Costume Chess

The emphasis will be on a group of highly interesting paintings when an exhibition of the canvases of artist Margaret Mullin goes on view at Phoenicia Library, beginning today.

But an intriguing sidelight will be offered in a one-of-a-kind set of hand-made Chess pieces, also conceived by artist Mullin. A long-time teacher of classes in the History of Costume for the Traphagan School of Fashion, she makes her Chess pieces in the costumes of various historical periods.

In private life, artist Margaret Mullin is Mrs. Joseph Meert, a resident of Lanesville since 1967, when she and her husband moved to the Catskills from New York City.

Her current show at the Phoenicia Library follows previous one-man shows in New York City and Kansas City. She has also exhibited her work in group shows in museums and galleries throughout the U.S.

Longest-Running

Where were you and what were you doing on Sept. 3, 1951? Mary Stuart has no trouble recalling her where-and-what. She was on the initial telecast of the CBS "Search for Tomorrow" program in the leading role of Joanne Tate. She's still at it as video's longest-running daytime drama series enters its 20th year.

Bonanza Customers to See Pike Paintings

For the convenience of customers of our Bonanza Office, Route 9W, town of Ulster, the four John Pike watercolors of significant area scenes will be on exhibit in that office beginning Monday, Sept. 14.

Children's Season: Cinderella and Greensleeves

Children's Season opens anew at Mount St. Mary College's Cultural Centre, Newburgh, with a Pickwick Puppet Theatre presentation of "Cinderella."

This first show of several at the College Centre is slated for Saturday, Sept. 19 at 2:15 p.m.; should attract many youngsters in the area familiar with the life-size rod puppets used. The Pickwick troupe has played to large audiences of children in previous engagements at the Centre.

Using the Prokofiev score for the ballet, "Cinderella," puppeteers manipulate the large puppets to familiarize youngsters with the story and the classical music, as well. Pickwick Theatre has appeared often and regularly with the Cleveland Orchestra, the Hartford Symphony and the Festival Orchestra of New York.

Musical Fairy Tale

Later in the season, at a date to be announced, the second show of the season for children will be "Greensleeves," the famous musical fairy tale. It'll be presented by Traveling Playhouse, which has just received a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to initiate its current program of children's plays. Now beginning its 21st season, Traveling Playhouse has performed before more than 3,000,000 youngsters in the past.

Looking even further ahead for those who like to plan long-range entertainment, the Centre's season continues with "Big, Little and In-Between" on Saturday, Feb. 6, 1971. Children's Theatre International, also a regular guest at the Newburgh campus, is producing this show featuring three Irish grades, and all will be performed on the beautiful stage to enact three famous folk of Aquinas Hall Theatre on tales about the adventures of the giants, leprechauns and people of normal size.

Final production of the 1970-71 series will be "Snow White Goes West," a complete retelling of the Snow White story as a "western." It'll be presented March 6 by the Prince Street Players, whose "Jack and the Beanstalk" was recently seen on CBS-TV and whose "Mother Goose Go-Go" played to a capacity audience last season at Mount Saint Mary's.

All four plays have been carefully selected to please the youngsters from pre-school through the elementary grades, and all will be performed on the beautiful stage to enact three famous folk of Aquinas Hall Theatre on tales about the adventures of the giants, leprechauns and people of normal size.

productions available this year at PACT PREVIEW '70, annual presentation by the Producers Association of Children's Theatre. From plays featured, Centre representatives chose those they felt uniquely qualified to combine educational value and high entertainment.

Season tickets and individual events tickets are available by contacting the Cultural Centre, Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh.

On a Clear Day You Can See Forever

Based on the 1965 Broadway stage offering of the same name, "Clear Day" is a musical sure to delight Barbara Streisand fans. It's also guaranteed to make man of those who have not been Streisand buffs in the past—or those who have never seen or heard her—for she makes the most of what this movie has to offer its leading lady in the way of dramatic opportunity.

Known as one of the finest singers of the time, she demonstrates in this film that she is also a marvelous comedienne and an excellent actress. She is extraordinary indeed as a sort of dumb-bunny: a mixed-up young girl who wants to stop smoking; seeks help from a hypnotist.

Under the spell of Yves Montand as the hypnotist, she becomes a movie Bridey Murphy type; reveals herself in her clairvoyance as an alluring lady of another century and a girl who has led more than a dozen lives in the past.

She's Perfect

There's fun aplenty as fade-backs in time take over the screen at Kingston's Community this week, where "Clear Day" is currently holding forth. Miss Streisand is totally perfect in all situations encountered, whether set in the past or on the contemporary scene. The dialogue is bright and she exploits each and every line for come lively and delicious satire.

Several good songs are shared by Miss Streisand and Montand. And the imaginative comedy is aided and abetted by Larry Blyden, who is fine as the heroine's beau; Bob Newhart as the head of a medical school where Montand is employed; and Jack Nicholson (the young lawyer of "Easy Rider") in a brief role.

All in all, very pleasant entertainment which we enjoyed to the hilt.

Women in Love

This extraordinary film, now playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theater, will elicit strong reactions from viewers. Ambitious in scope, the movie thoroughly explores the complex interrelationships among four people.

Taken from the novel by D. H. Lawrence (other films based on Lawrence's work include "The Fox," "Sons and Lovers," and "Lady Chatterly's Lover"), the film delves into the author's brand of mysticism and explores the dynamic of love.

Long an admirer of Lawrence as an author, we found the film fully expressive of the Lawrence ideal. A brilliant cast (Alan Bates, Oliver Reed, Glenda Jackson, Jennie Linden, Alan Webb, and a host of others) has assured a moving film that proves the complexities of human relationships and brings Lawrence's "Women in Love" to the screen with shattering impact.

Very Adult Fare

It is, however, strictly adult fare; has received a rating of "R." It is therefore bound to generate controversy because of its display of nudity and its subject matter. But there is none of the rawness of pornography in this film, and it must be praised as a movie of outstanding artistic merit.

There are impressive scenes of high drama. Finely acted is a dialogue about love between Reed and Bates as they discuss whether it can exist between two of the same sex, or only between man and woman, or whether it exists at all. One scene which may well shock some is a wrestling sequence between Bates and Reed. Filmed with both actors entirely nude, the scene nevertheless manages to be poetic and masculine rather than effete and homosexual.

The camera, constantly changing its vantage point, integrates the nudity into the scene, totally involving the viewer in its physical expression.

A strange but brilliant film, stressing a physical love between two men that transcends homosexuality, and a relationship between two women who have a similar bond, although it lacks the physical dimensions of their masculine counterparts. And, if the subject matter is often difficult, the photography is visually enthralling and the acting performances magnificent.

Boys in the Band

Back for a rerun at Kingston's Sunset Drive-In, "Boys in the Band" excels for its truth. Adapted from the off-Broadway hit, it is a brilliant look at the Greenwich Village life of homosexuals and their hang-ups. Plot revolves around a birthday party that turns more hostile than festive as, out of the guilt of each guest, a series of savage sequences emerge. Adds a great deal of necessary understanding for the homosexual scene by portraying such individuals as human beings first and deviates second. A witty, human, funny, brilliant drama.

On the double bill at the Sunset is another rerun, "The Grasshopper," a rather pointless movie about a girl of today (Jacqueline Bisset) who leaves her small-town home for Las Vegas and Los Angeles and a variety of beaus and husbands from a comic and an ex-football star to a young pimp, an old multimillionaire and a hillbilly pilot. Co-starred are Jim Brown and Joseph Cotten.

Kelly's Heroes

Clint Eastwood never once changes his stone-faced expression as a G.I. leading a group of World War II soldiers through the German lines in France to pull off a $16-million bank robbery. Even so, there are some pretty funny scenes and some rare belly laughs in "Kelly's Heroes," back for a rerun at the local 9-W Drive-In. That's because Don Rickles gets off his usual insults, and because Donald Sutherland turns in one of the brightest performances of the year as a zany tank commander who's more hippie than military.

Second feature at 9 W is "Point Blank," an oldie but a goodie. Starring Lee Marvin as a heister who's been double-crossed, it boasts excitement and suspense as Marvin sets out for revenge and his fair share of the spoils; finds himself among millionaire mobsters and the abandoned cells of Alcatraz.

Other Choices

THE OUT-OF-TOWNERS. Now showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema is this comedy — all about the Fun City adventures of a square couple from Ohio. When the couple happens to be Jack Lemmon and Sandy Dennis, you can expect a fine madness and a frantic comedy. You can also expect to meet up with all the injustices of the big city and a variety of Manhattan characters including clerks, taxi cab drivers, muggers, cops, and officials.

ANNE OF THE THOUSAND DAYS. This fine historical drama is the current feature at Hyde Park Drive-In. Genevieve Bujold gives a brilliant performance as Anne Aboleyn, and Richard Burton is fine as Henry VIII. A lavish production with spectacular costumes.

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

DONALD SUTHERLAND plays "Oddball," a renegade tank sergeant, in "Kelly's Heroes," war comedy now showing at 9-W Drive-In locally.

CLINT EASTWOOD as Kelly marches to the tune of 16 million dollars in "Kelly's Heroes," 9-W's AWOL bank robbery film.

PLACES TO DINE & DANCE

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI
Williams Lake Hotel Beach Club sounded like country but looked like Las Vegas Sunday when talented, rich, beautiful and notable guests celebrated "Goodbye summer, Hello fall" during Labor Day weekend.

Guest-participation provided hilarious program and no celebrity could've held-a-candle to such impromptu talent. Pete Knudsen's Orchestra — Johnny Valentine at piano, Mac Abrams' son on drums, Jerry Lehr on trumpet — gave open-air concert while Old Sol smiled on bathing-suited guys 'n gals puffin' and pantin' barefoot through Alley Cat on outside patio. Several strictly amateur soloists belted out a few ditties and every so often one or two swingers goofed during dance routine, zigging when they should've zagged, while an exclusive dress designer accompanied himself on piano to broken-record lyrics of "The Girl That I Marry."

Hokey and Marie Tomson were eating it up. Their college bound son Joel, who's social director at Lake, was emceeing and instigating much of shenanigans. (When Joel smiles, he could melt your mother-in-law.) Live wire as he is, he made time to dance with Mom who joked that Joel's locks were longer than hers. But that's HER fault; Marie wears her hair about an inch all around. Understand Joel had such a ball all summer, he spent his day off at the Lake. Now we ask you, what greater love is there?

Pete Mathews in shorts looked like he'd just come off the golf course. . . . Madeline Reis in bathing suit ended summer with perfect score; hadn't missed a weekend at the Lake.

Turtle races which drew a crowd are "slowly" becoming as "in" as Saratoga track. Host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams — with a certain theatrical flair — treated guests to their version of folk dancing which initiated them into ranks-of-the-envied. Their daughter and son-in-law, Anita and Ted Peck, were proud as proverbial you-know-what.

Guests found it impossible to break away. One visitor noted number of patrons who've been vacationing at Williams Lake for eons and looked younger today than in 1950. When one gets down to nitty-gritty, sunshine, fresh air, joviality must have somethin' to do with it. Right? Right!

O. J. Simpson would've had trouble weaving through crowds under Hasbrouck Park pavilion last Sunday at St. Mary's 15th annual family picnic. Egg-throwing contest was a highlight and the way some of those eggs bounced, one would've bet they were hard-boiled. Mayor Koenig did some great catching but his throwin' arms a bit too powerful; Marilyn got caught with egg on her face. (If Frank's not more careful, Mrs. K. will vote GOP and the "yoke" will be on him). Regina Bruck and Larry McHugh were winning team. Don't know what the prize was; probably two dozen eggs!

Couldn't help detecting a bit of "vendetta" in some of those careless flings, especially the one Colleen Grunenwald's brother-in-law threw her. Colleen got snafued, unglued, and plastered before anyone could say egg-foo-yung. (Onlookers didn't DARE stand too close to the action).

Jim Gilpatric had to tear himself away from Jim Berardi's clambake to put heads-on-hops at picnic, then gumshoe to another shindig at Gallo's. Meanwhile City Clerk Lou DeCicco was tryin' his best to make cocktail party in Ellenville for Congressman Richard Ottinger (Democratic Senator-hopeful) but Lou couldn't seem to machine gun his way out. Ah, summer may be takin' leave, but what a way to go . . .

Looks as if Patrolmen Harold DeGraff and Junius Harris are initiating a new breed-of-blue-coats. Moonlighting as midwives and makin' like track stars, they raced to beat Sir Stork to hospital recently with fellow officer's wife who gave birth five minutes later. She's fine. Harold and Junie will NEVER be the same.

Mrs. Sophie Palkowics of Rifton, mother of social butterfly, Mrs. Herb (Sofia) Reuner, was quite the celebrity in her own-right at Deanie's one recent evening when pianist Flo O'Dell dedicated her tunes to Mrs. P. who was having a "happy." Understand Sofia's Mom cooed like a cheerful cherub . . . Western Union Manager Joe Vidal to seashore on vacation forced to buy a new swim suit. Seems the one he has developed holes in the knees . . .

'Price' for 'Hall'

"The Price," Arthur Miller's successful Broadway drama of 1968, will have a video version on NBC Feb. 3 as one of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" series. George C. Scott, Barry Sullivan, David Burns and Colleen Dewhurst will play the four characters.

Direct From Montreal Comes UCCC's Opening Exhibit

Even the hard to please the public from now to Oct. 3 in the Visual Arts Gallery on campus from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

As proof of this fact, Ulster County Community College is leading off its Visual Arts exhibitions for the new school year with a display of work whose clear design presents an outstanding example of responsible publicity art.

The initial show of the 1970-71 Art Exhibition Series at the college's Stone Ridge campus is featuring a collection of original international award winning designs by Rolf Harder and Ernst Roch, Canada's leading graphic and industrial designers. The graphics show will be open to

'Designers' Designers'

Artists Ernst Roch and Rolf Harder are among the most significant forces in modern Canadian graphic design. More than any other designers in Canada today, they have consistently produced design solutions that are both intellectually and emotionally responsive. They are "designers' designers;" have been universally praised by their colleagues for their originality and clarity in an age of confusing acoustical and visual impressions.

Born in Hamburg in 1929,

Harder worked for German agencies before becoming a Canadian resident. Yugoslavian born Roch, a year older than his colleague, studied in Austria; has worked as both designer and art director. Schooled in the artistic, they immigrated to Canada because of the lure of a promising future in a young and culturally expanding country.

They found in Montreal what they sought; forged careers that brought numerous awards and exhibitions and led to the formation of the creative design firm, Design Collaborative Montreal Limited, the business in which they are partners.

Communication is their business, and how well they have succeeded with symbols that convey messages will be obvious to those who visit their graphics show this month at the UCCC gallery. Browsers will find and be intrigued by designs embodying the international style and exploring current ideas and new directions in graphic designs.

By-Passing 'Loudness'

What impresses is that the "loudness" so recurrent in most modern advertising has been replaced with a sense of esthetic responsibility.

For a pleasing art exhibition of intellectual and creative imagination, TEMPO recommends a visit to UCCC for a long and lingering look at the work of these two designers. Few shows ever seen in this area have so well shown how the producing artist organizes his use of space and form clearly and geometrically to obtain originality and clarity. See it you should some time during the month ahead.

Touring Art Show Due Sept. 15 at New Paltz

A touring show — one that's been traveling from campus-to-campus — goes on display at New Paltz's College Art Gallery from Sept. 15 to Oct. 2.

It's the University Artists 1969 Exhibition which first went on public view back in the spring of 1969 at the State University at Albany; is now hopping other SUNY campuses.

From an original show of 204 works, submitted by art faculty throughout the State University system, 34 are included in the traveling exhibit. They were specially chosen by Dr. William C. Seitz, director of Rose Art Museum and Poses Institute of Fine Arts at Brandeis University.

In his foreword to the show's catalogue, Dr. Seitz notes the difficulties of whittling down an exhibit of 200 works to one-sixth of its original size. So varied was the show that judging was a problem. That he brought the necessary talent to the task is obvious in the results of his selection which make up this Paltz exhibit of works, representative of the original Albany show.

"University Artists 1969" will be open to the public in the College Art Gallery from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday, as well as one evening each week. Ably representing the

New Paltz art faculty in the exhibition are Peter Bohan, Manuel Bromberg, David Cummings, Kenneth M. Green, and John E. Seaholm, an impressive number considering that only 34 artists were chosen from around the state.
